FEAR DROUGHT TO CONTINUE IN CURRENT YEAR

If Lack of Rain Ruins Many Crops Relief Estimates Will Be Upset

WHEAT CROP INJURED

Congress Insists on Larger Fund Than First Believed Necessary

Chicago—(AP)—Favored by nature with moisture, farmers in many sections of the parched middle west were hopeful today that the backbone of the three-months' drought had been broken.

Reports from various sections of middle America last night told of rain or snow and the weather man held out further hope with a prediction for more moisture today. The prediction was for rain or snow in many parts of Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota and North Dakota, with a possibility of showers in some sections of Missouri, Kansas and South Dakota.

Washington—(CPA) Danger of a drought in 1931 is being discussed here as a possible contingency which may upset all previous calculations as to the sums needed for relief and bring about compromise legislation.

Indications are that the shortage of snow and moisture may make the drought season of this year even more serious proportions than last year. Chairman Legge of the farm board thinks it entirely possible that there may be a shortage of wheat.

But the most immediate effect of these reports is to cause congress to insist upon larger relief appropriations than were at first contemplated.

Reports from some sections of Kentucky are to the effect that it would require twelve inches of rainfall to provide the necessary moisture for successful crops and that farmers are beginning to despair of getting much aid from their crops in 1931.

Under such circumstances, not only will the loan fund hitherto provided for the planting of seed have to be carried on but individual loans to farmers in the drought area may be necessary, notwithstanding the administration's position heretofore.

Must Be Prepared

There are signs that the catastrophe in the drought area is so much greater than originally believed and only an anticipation, many months in advance, of the consequences of the drought will prevent real distress.

Members of congress are talking about giving the president a large appropriation to administer in the drought areas as he sees fit without specifically requiring loans for food or any other specified grant of funds to the individual. In other words the president would be empowered to deal with the situation as he saw fit and as the emergency required.

Some of the scientists declare a severe drought has not occurred in 75 years and that it is usually of two years duration and the information thus far available as to the condition of crops in the winter months would seem to bear out their observations. The farm board says that the wheat crop has been injured considerably in the central and eastern states and from Illinois eastward it is in poor condition.

The problem of how to deal with a more extensive drought area than the nation experienced in 1929 is still theoretical because nobody knows of course how much moisture may become available between now and spring. But if congress is not to be in session after March 4, it is pointed out here that some emergency powers might be vested in the department of agriculture to take care of any situation that might arise. These members of congress who wish to avoid an extra session altogether are inclined to believe that it will not be possible to adjourn without giving the chief executive broad powers.

Suspect Foul Play In Injury Of Farm Hand

FRANK DEFENDS U. OF W. COSTS IN COMMITTEE

Also Replies to Governor on Institution's Educational Policy

Madison—(AP)—In the presentation of the University of Wisconsin's budget request, President Glenn Frank yesterday answered Gov. Philip La Follette's challenging questions in the fields of educational policy and costs.

Speaking before the joint finance committee of the legislature, President Frank noted that the governor's budget message raised three issues respecting the state's educational institutions, namely, of reorganization and reform, of the acquisition of property, and of the determination of salaries, and of the issue of "dead wood" in the faculty.

Gov. La Follette recommended a cut of more than $500,000 in the university budget for the biennium. Dr. Frank said the cut was justifiable in view of the economic depression but objected to the slicing of $20,000 from the college of agriculture's appropriation.

Regarding a reorganization of the university, Dr. Frank said that "during the last three years in particular a process of reorganization, unmatched in any other American university, has been under way in the University of Wisconsin." The reorganization, he said, has been of the sort "that does not, while it is going on, attract public attention or lend itself to colorful, jolly-hoo by educators."

Encourage Good Students

To illustrate the president pointed to the bureau of guidance and records which encourages good students to enter the university and discourages the unfit from entering. In the college of letters and science the extensive revision of the curriculum "has blazed a trail that the rest of the educational world will, in my judgment, have to follow."

REYNOLDS TO QUIT POST IN FEW DAYS, NEWSPAPER SAYS

Madison—The Capital Times today said John W. Reynolds will resign as attorney general within 15 or 20 days and his successor will be appointed by Gov. Philip La Follette.

The report of the attorney general's impending resignation is from authentic sources, the paper said. Another report which gained circulation here today was that Alvin C. Reis, Madison, who opposed Reynolds in the last election, will be the governor's choice for the post in the event of the attorney general's resignation.

Mr. Reynolds has announced his candidacy for the supreme court. He will oppose Justice Chester Fowler who defeated him in the last court election.

SHERIFF FEARS THUG WAYLAIED DELBERT UNGER

Investigation Started This Morning by Lappen at Hortonville

Foul play in connection with the serious wounding of Delbert Unger, 50, Hortonville, last Wednesday night or Thursday morning, was suspected this morning by Sheriff John Lappen as he started an investigation. Unger, who was found in the ditch on highway 26 near Hortonville about 8 o'clock Thursday morning with a fractured skull, is in a serious condition at St. Elizabeth hospital. He still is unconscious, and authorities have been unable to secure any information from him.

Sheriff Lappen, who went to Hortonville Friday, found that Unger was employed on the Julius farm, just beyond Hortonville. It is believed Unger was struck down while on his way home. The nature of the skull fracture led Sheriff Lappen to the conclusion that the injury did not result from an auto accident. At first the authorities believed Unger was struck by a "hit and run" driver; but there are no other bruises or marks on the body. This fact gives foundation to the theory that Unger might have been attacked by an assailant who sought to rob him.

This theory was given grounds, the sheriff said, when he learned that Unger had talked at Hortonville of having some money coming from a former employer. He had expressed his intentions of collecting his wages. The sheriff believes someone overheard him, and waylaid him.

The investigation revealed, however, that Unger had not gone to his former employer for the money. However, the sheriff pointed out, this would not be known to his assailant.

Unger was found last Thursday by Village Marshall Kuhn. The marshal was leaving his home when he saw Unger's body. Unger was last seen in a Hortonville soft drink parlor about 10 o'clock Wednesday night. It is believed that he started to walk to his home and that the accident happened shortly after.

Eau Claire Shows Way In Red Cross Contributions

Eau Claire county set a rapid pace for the rest of Wisconsin, including Outagamie county, when it oversubscribed its Red Cross drought relief quota by more than $500 and still is going strong in an effort to double the amount expected from that community. Outagamie county, yesterday afternoon still was 75 per cent short of its quota of $1,000.

The Red Cross is seeking $10,000, 000 for relief work in the afflicted areas but there is plenty of evidence that even this amount will not be sufficient to give reasonable help. Government agencies declare the situation even worse than described by the Red Cross.

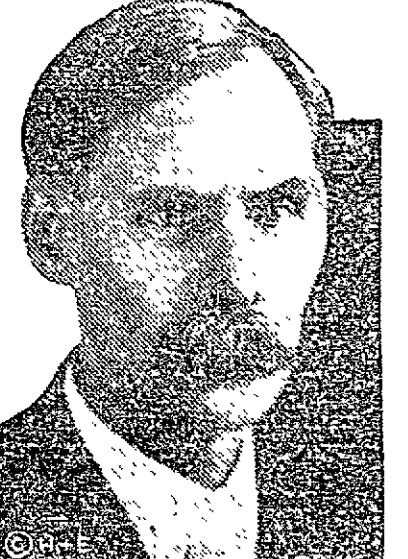

Outagamie county people have had a demonstration of what the Red Cross can do by its appropriation to help the Indians of Oneida reservation. A great deal has been accomplished for these sufferers near at home and now money is needed to help out a situation many times worse than found in this county.

Children everywhere are showing tremendous interest in the appeal and many donations have been received from these sources. Their contributions are as welcome to the Red Cross as the large subscriptions by adults.

In addition to the names published heretofore the following have subscribed to the fund:

Mary Pomeroy, Helen M. Schmidt, Rev. Philip Schneider.

Recovering

ANDREW J. VOLSTEAD

Minneapolis, Minn.—(AP)—Stricken with appendicitis, Andrew J. Volstead, of St. Paul, author of the prohibition enforcement law, was in a hospital here, resting "easily" today after an operation.

Mr. Volstead became ill late Thursday and was operated on that night. His physician said there was "no immediate danger" to the "father" of the enforcement act, who now is legal adviser for the northwest district of the prohibition bureau.

OPPOSITION NOT LIKELY TO BAR BILL'S PASSAGE

Democratic Leaders Agree That Agreement Is Entirely Acceptable

BONUS STILL PROBLEM

Compromise on Veterans Certificates May Avert Special Session

Washington—(AP)—The $30,000,000 drought relief loan compromise was agreed to today by conferees of the senate and house.

Washington—(AP)—Despite evidence of rebellion against the drought relief compromise taking form within the ranks of the senate coalition, the Democratic leaders themselves repeated today the agreement for a $20,000,000 loan fund for "agricultural rehabilitation" was entirely acceptable.

Expressions of discontent came quickly from the Republican independents and from some of the Democrats because the substitute for the disputed $25,000,000 Red Cross relief appropriation did not make specific provision for loans for food.

However, both Senators Robinson and Caraway of Arkansas, the Democratic leaders in the battle for the Red Cross fund, said they would doubt whatever that loans could be made to the farmers in the drought areas for any use whatever under the language "agricultural rehabilitation."

Senate and house conferees on the interior department bill, in which the senate inserted a disputed $25,000,000 Red Cross fund, were called to meet this afternoon to act on the new agreement. After that, it would be placed first before the senate.

Robinson and Caraway expressed the opinion that loans for purchase of food could be made under the language of the compromise agreement.

But Senator Connally, Democrat, Texas, was skeptical. He said he wanted a signed statement from Secretary Hyde that he would agree to make loans under this language for purchase of food if necessary.

Extirpate Term

The Republican conferees, who will have the balance of power in the new congress in both branches, also were taking stands against the agreement and preparing to fight on for an extra session of congress.

However, with Senator Robinson and Caraway satisfied with the compromise, enough Democrats were expected to support it to assure an overwhelming majority in the senate, thus ending the contest.

An old controversy became a new menace to the plans of congressional leaders for avoiding a special session.

Congratulating themselves that the compromise had removed the extraneous threat, they found proposals for redeeming veterans adjusted compensation certificates blocking their way.

The senate finance committee agreed to defer action until next week on bills to cash the soldiers' certificates so that the house ways and means committee may have an opportunity to act. The latter claims jurisdiction over such legislation.

A compromise described today by Representative Garner, the Democratic leader, as calling for an outlay of $1,200,000,000 in new loans to veterans, was the basis of a demand for action at this session.

Announcing the compromise yesterday, Representative Bacharach, Republican, New Jersey, estimated cost at $500,000,000.

BRUENING WINNER IN REICHSTAG TEST VOTE

Berlin—(AP)—Overriding the opposition by decisive majorities, Chancellor Bruening won a distinct victory in the Reichstag today when the parliament voted down a series of obstructionist measures proposed by the Communists and the National Socialists.

By 293 to 221 the members defeated a joint no-confidence motion by the two parties, a similar motion directed against Gottfried Treysman, minister without portfolio, lost 312 to 206; and a National Socialist motion requesting President von Hindenburg to dissolve the parliament was voted down by 318 to 207.

The majorities were interpreted as an indication that the government would succeed in pushing through its "Spartan" 1931 budget without having recourse to the "dictator clause" in the constitution which provides for suspension of the Reichstag and government by decree.

After adopting the chancellorly budget the Reichstag adjourned until Monday.

WILKIE IS COUNSEL IN TAX COMMISSION CASE

Madison—(AP)—Gov. Philip La Follette today appointed Harold M. Wilkie, Madison, as special counsel to represent the state in the appeal of the Hooper VS. Tax Commission case in the U. S. Supreme court.

The case involves the constitutionality of the statute which permits the tax commission to assess taxes on the income of a wife before marriage. Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Hooper, Wausau, protested the assessment of taxes against the income made prior to Mrs. Hooper's marriage in October, 1927. They contend that the income tax under the husband and wife classification cannot be assessed against income received prior to marriage.

DETROIT GANGSTER SLAIN IN HIS HOME

Found Dead by Wife in Kitchen—Many Weapons Found in Dwelling

Detroit—(AP)—Chester LaMare, 47, for years a powerful factor in the underworld of Detroit and Hamtramck, was shot to death early today in the kitchen of his home on Grandville-ave. Found by his slayer in a house which he had plentifully stocked with pistols and ammunition, the gang leader was shot down in the one room where he had neglected to place a weapon. Whether the shooting was the work of gangster enemies or a betrayal by his friends is not known. LaMare's wife Anna, is detained by police.

Shortly after midnight, Mrs. LaMare said, she stepped out to a drug store two blocks away. When she returned 15 minutes later, she told police, she discovered the body of her husband with a bullet hole in his back.

Police found six pistols, a tear gas rifle, shotgun and hand grenade, scattered about the house.

FLYING BRIDEGROOM, WIFE BEING SOUGHT

Miami, Fla.—(AP)—A flying bridegroom and his bride were the objects of a search by newspapermen and photographers here today.

Phil R. Love, 27, St. Louis, and Miss Eulalie Fowler Cook, 22, Webster Groves, Mo., were licensed to marry here last night. A short while later the girl's parents were advised the couple had married.

Love flew here from St. Louis yesterday, advising airport attendants he wished to leave his plane for a week since he planned a trip to Cuba. The couple could not be located today. Love accompanied Col. Charles A. Lindbergh on his nationwide tour soon after the flight from New York to Paris.

BANDY ARRESTED IN MINNEAPOLIS RAID

Merchandise Believed Taken in Series of Burglaries Is Recovered

Minneapolis—(AP)—Roundup of a robber band, which police believed preyed on small communities in Minnesota, Wisconsin and North Dakota, was reported underway today after a raid on an apartment where Gale Bandy was picked up.

Bandy, wanted at Sheboygan, Wis., was surprised in bed by trunks of merchandise including four coats and other wearing apparel, house furnishings and radios.

Discovery of the cache, police said, followed the arrest at Sheboygan several days ago of a man who was attempting to sell oriental rugs. Questioning of him and examination of articles found in his room developed a trail which led here.

Chief of Police H. W. Wagner, Detective Tony Herman, both of Sheboygan, accompanied Minnesota authorities on the raid here.

Bandy, they said, has been a fugitive since December when his wife, his brother, Richard, and another woman were arrested at Kenosha, Wis., and a trunk filled with $30,000 in loot from several Wisconsin robberies was seized at a lake resort.

Roy Johnson, sought since the Kenosha raid, was picked up at Wausau, Wis., yesterday, police said they were advised. Johnson was charged with possession of burglary tools, which, they said he admitted, were obtained from Bandy here.

Bandy and Johnson are the alleged leaders of the gang that broke into the Fashion Shop, 302 W. College-ave, in October and robbed the Waghams filling station and Firestone Tire Store on W. College-ave during the summer.

Mrs. Viola Johnson, wife of the man, was brought to Appleton to be tried for complicity in the Fashion Shop robbery but was released.

25 FISHERMEN SET ADRIFT ON ICE FLOE

Fear Waves and Wind Will Throw Group Into Lake Erie

Buffalo, N. Y.—(AP)—Twenty men who had been drifting for several hours on a huge ice floe in the open waters of Lake Erie were rescued late this afternoon and brought ashore by coast guards. It was believed that at least five other men remained on the floe which was thought to be several miles in extent.

Buffalo, N. Y.—(AP)—At least 25 fishermen were carried out into Lake Erie today when a northwest wind broke off a huge section of the ice on which they were fishing.

Identify of the men could not be ascertained immediately. The men were drifting in the open lake about three miles off the Buffalo harbor. Marine officials reported the ice where the floe broke away was only six or seven inches thick and it was feared the wind and waves soon would smash the floe to pieces beneath the men. When the ice floe broke away, four of the men on it leaped ashore and from their stories coast guards gleaned meager details of the accident.

BEARS BEAT RETREAT DURING BRIEF TRADING

New York—(AP)—Bears were thrown into disordered retreat in today's stock market, and prices of leading shares surged up $1 to $2.

The advance concluded a week of almost steadily rising prices, interrupted by a moderate attack only on Thursday, trading quickened to the brisk pace in several days. The turnover for the two-hour session aggregated 1,200,000 shares, which duplicated the volume of trading for full five-hour session on both Monday and Tuesday. Half of the day's turnover was in the last half hour.

General Motors sold up more than $1 to the best price of the new year, and such issues as U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, American Can, American Tobacco, Sears Roebuck and Westinghouse Electric recorded similar gains.

Grand Jury Probes Report Of Attack On Dry Agents

The federal grand jury at Milwaukee yesterday afternoon was to take some action against William Storm, 12-15 W. Winthrop-st., for an alleged attack on a squad of prohibition agents from the Milwaukee office, who attempted to conduct an "investigation" at his home without a search warrant. The fracas occurred about 8 o'clock last Monday night and although local police were called to the scene by neighbors, no complaint was filed against Storm at that time by the federal agents. The agents left the city in a hurry.

Police Chief George T. Trim said he knew nothing of the affair beyond what was reported to him by the officers sent to investigate. He said the dry squad made no report to him and inasmuch as the police were not asked to make any arrests, there was no official record made of the disturbance, beyond recording of the call.

Baiters Ask Facts

Not until the affair was noted about the federal building corridors Friday afternoon at Milwaukee was it brought to the attention of the United States district attorney's office. Hearing the story, Gilbert Vander Cook, assistant federal attorney, told the agents the incident would be retried and before the federal grand jury if they desired to make charges.

Agent W. Belmont conferred with W. Frank Cunningham, deputy publisher of the Milwaukee Journal, and rushed to her assistance.

BISHOP'S HEARING TO LAST INTO NEXT WEEK

Washington—(AP)—The 12 elders hearing charges against Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, today continued to receive the bishop's defense. Reports came from within the hearing indicated the bishop's trial will last into next week.

By the afternoon each of the 45 charges against Bishop Cannon had introduced documentary evidence, some designed to refute charges and some in the form of assurances of his good character.

The bishop said she would be at her desk Monday and that her husband would be at work as usual in the New York publishing firm of Brown and Warren with which he is associated.

M'CORMICK ADVOCATES DRY LAW REFERENDUM

Fresno, Calif.—(AP)—A national referendum on prohibition to clarify the issue, is advocated by Federal Judge Paul J. McCormick, member of the Wickersham commission.

Judge McCormick said in an interview recent to the National Prohibition act would continue until its provisions were reconciled and made to apply uniformly to all intoxicating beverages.

He refused to comment upon the legal points involved in the authorization of the sale of fruit juices and concentrates.

A referendum, the jurist said, "would indicate clearly the present attitude of the nation as a whole upon the merits or demerits of the law and in my judgment, would greatly clarify the issue and aid in bringing about some change from the present unsatisfactory national conditions."

REFUSE MACHINE GUNS TO DANE-CO SHERIFF

Madison—(AP)—No machine guns for the Dane County sheriff. The county board ruled last night. Conrad Hansen, town of Burke, was of the opinion that machine guns were all right in war but had no place in the sheriff's band-chasing activities.

Thirty Injured When Explosion Rocks Los Angeles District

ACTOR AVERTS PANIC THREAT AT MOVIE SHOW

Blast Lifts Several Persons Into Air, Hurls Others Through Windows

Los Angeles—(AP)—Thirty persons were injured, several seriously, and a panic in a theatre audience of more than 2,000 was narrowly averted when an explosion in a power main in front of the Orpheum theatre shook the building late last night.

So terrific was the blast that several persons standing in front of the theatre were lifted into the air and others were hurled against store windows. A portion of the street was torn up and windows smashed.

The seriously injured: George Delk, 30, taxicab driver, fractured skull; Vito Vitullo, 25, actor, serious burns and lacerations; Betty Deter, 12, first degree burns on face and body; Early William O'Dell, 27, Negro chauffeur, first degree burns; T. P. Evans, 33, salesman, first degree burns.

A brilliant first night audience attracted by the presence of more than 1,100 motion picture players, packed the theatre for the premiere of "Cimarron" many film stars were on the stage making personal appearances when the explosion shocked the theatre.

Actor Calms Audience

Robert McWade, veteran stage and screen actor, averted a panic. "Don't get excited folks," McWade cried. "That was just part of the exhibition in my honor."

The audience laughed and grew calm. The show goes on in an orderly manner a short time later, squads of police and firemen took charge of the situation.

Delk's taxicab, parked in front of the theatre and bearing a passenger was hurled into the air, to hurtle down into a throng of persons at the entrance to the show house.

The machine stood directly over a manhole, the cover of which burst through the car's floorboard from the force of the explosion.

The blast was due to accumulation of gas in the power main, according to H. E. Walker, member of the fire prevention bureau, attending the performance.

A patrolman, J. C. Strange, told of being blown high into the air by the blast.

"I felt myself leaving the ground and soaring upward," the officer said. "When I landed in the midst of a crowd on the sidewalk, I was not seriously injured."

The cars of several motion picture luminaries, including the star of the picture, Richard Dix, and those of Mack Sennett and Constance Bennett were parked near the taxicab that bore the brunt of the explosion. They were slightly damaged.

BARRERE ENSEMBLE APPEARS IN CITY TUESDAY EVENING

Carlos Mullenix, Oboe Player, Is Member of Organization

Music of entrancing beauty, of contrasting tenderness, humor and incisive spirit is played by the Barrere Ensemble, which will appear in Appleton Tuesday evening as the fourth number of the Community Artist series.

The Barrere Ensemble of wind instruments is the offspring of the famous Societe Moderne d'Instruments a Vent, which was founded in Paris in 1895 by Georges Barrere immediately after his brilliant graduation as first prize winner from the Paris Conservatory.

Mr. Barrere saw a splendid opportunity to demonstrate the unusual and rare beauty of the different voices of the woodwind choir—flute, oboe, clarinet and bassoon in the revival of music which Bach, Haydn, Handel, Mozart and other classic composers had especially written for this combination of instruments. His plan succeeded so well that it has since flourished on two continents under the leadership of its founder.

Carlos Mullenix, son of Dr. and Mrs. R. C. Mullenix of this city, plays the oboe in the ensemble.

GOPHER SOLON ASKS STRONGER LIBEL ACT

Legislator Proposes to Make Law More Drastic Than Present One

St. Paul—(AP)—The teeth of Minnesota's laws of libel were being whetted today by a state senator who termed the provisions of a bill he is drafting even more drastic than the newspaper suppression law of this state.

Since repeal of the latter has been vetoed by the house with similar action likely to be taken by the senate, Senator Henry L. Morin said he would introduce a bill next week setting up a new and broader definition of criminal libel.

Unlike the suppression statute, however, the new measure would be aimed at individuals responsible for publication rather than the publication itself and would be an amendment to the present law on libel.

His definition of libel reads: "Every malicious publication by writing, printing, picture, effigy, sign or otherwise that by mere speech, which shall expose any living person, or the memory of one deceased, to hatred, contempt, ridicule, or obloquy or which shall cause or tend to cause any person to be shunned or avoided, or which shall have a tendency to injure any person, corporation or association of persons in his or their business or occupation shall be a libel."

Persons found guilty of publishing a libel under the new definition would be guilty of a felony, punishable by not more than three years nor less than one year in prison.

American Bar Started International Oratory

The international oratorical contest being sponsored in Appleton and vicinity by the Post-Crescent had its origin in a national contest begun by the American Bar association seven years ago.

After conducting the contest for several years it was realized that the newspapers in the country could give it greater publicity. In the last four years the event has grown tremendously, and this year Wisconsin contests are under the auspices of the Wisconsin Daily Newspaper league which consist of the leading newspapers in the state.

Each newspaper conducts a contest open to all high school students 19 or under living within its circulation territory. Schools on the border line of territory may select the contest in which to participate, but a student is allowed to enter in only one division.

Each high school represented must have its candidate chosen by March 10, in order to participate in the Appleton final which will be held in Appleton about April 4. An eligibility statement must be sent to the contest editor at least three days before the Appleton final. The form which will be published later in the newspaper, is to be signed by the contestant, by his principal, and by his history or English teacher.

Winners in the Appleton contest will receive four prizes: $50 for first, $25 second prize, $15 third prize, $10 fourth prize.

The high winner will be sent to Madison to participate in the state contest April 24. The state-winner will have expenses paid to Kansas City for the semi-finals. All semifinal winners will be sent on a free trip to Europe as well as Washington where they will compete for the national championship. The national representative will compete with winners from other nations in the international final.

MANY OPINIONS ON PERSONAL PROPERTY TAX ON AUTOMOBILES

Senator Points Out Discrepancy of Tax Placed Against Cars

(Editor's Note: This is the third of a series of five articles by Senator John E. Cushman, chairman of the Senate Committee on Highways explaining the most important features of the highway bill introduced by him.)

Madison—(AP)—"There are many honest differences in opinion regarding the best method of setting the perplexing problem of a personal property tax on motor-vehicles," wrote Senator Cushman.

"It is true that a motor-vehicle is a thing of value and should bear a fair share of taxation in some form or other. However, aside from the automobile, the motor-vehicle is the only piece of taxable personal property that can be in one taxing unit in the morning and in another unit 400 miles removed at the close of the day. This feature makes it practically impossible to collect the same percentage of personal property taxes on motor-vehicles that is collected on other classes of personal property.

"The tax commission's records show that not more than 70 per cent of the motor-vehicles registered each year are assessed and the best information available from the several town, city and village treasurers indicate that not more than 80 per cent of the taxes assessed are actually collected, therefore, it seems probable that less than 60 per cent of all motor-vehicles registered actually pay a personal property tax each year. The other 40 per cent go scot free which is entirely unfair to the 60 per cent who pay."

"The bill provides an easy and workable plan to do away with this ever disagreeable problem. Under the bill, the license fees paid will include all personal property taxes against the vehicle. In other words the license fee is automatically reduced exactly to the extent of the amount returned in lieu of the personal property tax on each motor-vehicle."

"To insure each town, city and village against loss of tax revenues so necessary to finance their current expenditures, the bill provides for a privilege highway tax to be returned to each town, city and village from the license fees paid, in an amount not less than the sum collected in each such unit from the tax levy on motor-vehicles in 1930."

This will result in a direct, general property tax reduction, in the amount of the total motor-vehicle taxes now paid, which is estimated to be $3,500,000. Under the provisions of the bill this amount will be paid in the future by all, including those owners who now evade their motor-vehicle tax, by those who drive a large mileage annually, and by the heavy trucks and busses.

"Under the present law the owner of a motor-vehicle has no control over the amount of his personal property tax on such vehicle. It is a sum fixed by the assessor and he must pay the bill. Under bill 29 the amount of gas tax each owner pays is largely under his control. A large percentage of motor-vehicle travel is for pleasure. Therefore, each owner may pay more or less gas tax as desired. This feature of the bill is worthy of careful consideration. Let those who use the roads pay a large share of their costs."

ARREST FIFTH LOCAL BOY IN STOLEN AUTO

George Branold, 16, Caught With Car 15 Minutes After It Is Stolen

George Branold, 16, 508 N. Richmond-st, was arraigned before Judge Fred V. Heinemann in municipal court this morning on a charge of possession of a stolen car. No date was set for his preliminary hearing. He was placed in custody of Sheriff John Lappen. Branold was arrested about 9:30 last night driving a car owned by John McCann, 321 S. Memorial-dr, which had been stolen only 15 minutes before from the Badger rural school on the Spencer-rd, town of Grand Chute. Branold was stopped on W. Wisconsin-ave by Gus Hersekorn, motorcycle officer, on suspicion. When he could not explain how he got the car, he was taken to the station.

Branold has been in juvenile court several times previous to this arrest. The arrest of this youth is the fifth this week of local boys in connection with stolen cars. One youth, Lawrence Mader, 17, 1003 W. Frank-lin-st, is being held in the Brown-co jail at Green Bay, awaiting sentence on a charge of operating a car without the owner's consent. He has pleaded guilty and it is to be sentenced Tuesday.

Three other boys are in the custody of Sheriff Lappen here, awaiting settlement of charges against them in juvenile court. They were arrested at Green Bay last week, while driving a car stolen at Evanston, Ill. The Evanston officials refused to prosecute and the boys were turned back to officials here. They are: Charles Mader, 15, a brother of Lawrence; Ray Poca, 17, W. Washington-st; and Richard Miller, 17, 826 E. John-st.

Sportsman Pushes Fight On Fishing License Law

BY B. A. CLAFIN

When I took up the cudgel for the thousands of anglers of Wisconsin against the proposed resident fishing license law I did it only after very careful consideration and much study of the subject. I am convinced from my own investigations and from my deductions made after interviews with many persons in all walks of life that it is the wrong thing to do at this time. It is one thing to burst into print with personal opinions, and quite another to represent the great majority of those who would have to dig into their jeans for the money, which, undoubtedly, is needed by the Conservation commission.

I recently stated that I was opposed to the passage of this bill at this time, and I am convinced by many expressions of approval I have since received from all over the state that I gave conclusive and logical reasons for taking the stand that I do.

It must not be understood that I am opposing the bill because of the one dollar that a resident license would cost. Nor am I opposing it because of the fact that the Conservation commission is asking for more money. My chief reason for objecting to it at this time is the fact that certain corrective measures should first be undertaken. These I will point out presently.

Sure of Figures

My assertion that non-residents get the major part of our game fish—particularly those of the lakes—was not made haphazardly. It stands as I made it, and it was arrived at only after very careful investigation. I am sure that the figures I give are correct. I am not sure that I am given credit for. But be assured that I am fully convinced that my statement is correct, or I would not make it.

So far as the tourist business for Wisconsin is concerned, I realize quite well the value of it. And yet I say without any fear of contradiction by those in a position to pass on the matter that the bulk of this money goes into the coffers of the northern resort owners and oil companies.

The resort owners should get it. Their investments are big, and their business is just as legitimate as any other on which far greater returns are received. Their earnings should be commensurate with their investments. I am for them—not against them.

In other words, if there were no fish there would be no tourists; and if there were no tourists there would be no resort owners, and if there were no resort owners the residents of the state should and would be glad to pay a resident license fee to help bring back the fish, as was done in Pennsylvania for her wild life after that state had been well-nigh depleted of it.

That brings us right back to my contention that if the tourists would come here to fish—and make no mistake about that being the magnet which draws them—they should be asked to contribute at least enough funds to keep up the supply of fish in the waters which they haunt and monopolize from the opening of each season to its close, and I am satisfied they would be willing to do it.

I am not opposing all attempts to inaugurate a resident fishing license law. It may be necessary in time to come. But I do strenuously object to it at the present time. It is inconsistent and will be so until such corrective measures as increasing the non-resident fishing license fee and prohibiting winter ice fishing on Lake Winnebago and certain other waters are inaugurated. The $75,000 spent annually in Wisconsin for wolf bounties could be used for a far better purpose.

Another bill is proposed which would vest in the Conservation commission the power to open and close seasons on upland birds. The commission should have the power to close a season, but not to open. The latter would afford too much of an opportunity for personal influence. It might, be dangerous.

The bill to afford more protection to game wardens is a good one. Particularly because of gangster invasion of our northern counties. So is the one to license taxidermists and compel them to keep records of specimens mounted. It would help our song birds. And so, too, is the bill which proposes to allow the Conservation Commission to start civil action against violators. It was copied from the one in force in New York State. If it goes through there may be some chance of getting convictions in courts for fish and game violations.

Some of the proposed bills are very good, but some are equally bad. I have explained some of them in order that they may be given adequate publicity; and I trust that my opinions as expressed will be received as constructive discussions, rather than any attempt at obstruction of the progress of conservation.

EXHIBIT PRINTS AT COLLEGE LIBRARY

One Photograph Without Title Is Central Feature of Collection

A photograph without a title is the central feature of 36 prints from the Chicago Camera club now on exhibit in the art alcoves of the Lawrence college library. Students and others interested will be asked to suggest titles for this feature photograph done by W. C. West. It is a masterful photograph of a snow scene.

Unique and varied treatments of photographic subjects done by camera experts comprise the exhibit. The pictures included have recently been exhibited in the foremost art salons of the world, in London, Pittsburg, Boston, Los Angeles, New York, Portland, and Madrid, Spain. They comprise an important part of the exhibits recently shown at the Minnesota Fine Arts Exhibition.

Among the prints on display at the college are some of unusual beauty. Mr. Mogg, Dr. Palmstone, Mr. Kgalisen and other famous photographers are exhibiting prints made from paper negatives. Many of the pictures have been treated through removing subjects not considered necessary for the general beauty of the photograph; for example in a print called "The Snake handler," there are several other figures in the picture. These were removed by using crayons, lead pencil abrasives and other methods. A large copy was then made and used as a negative to make the finished print. Most of the pictures on display are enlargements made from very small negatives.

Another bill is proposed which would vest in the Conservation commission the power to open and close seasons on upland birds. The commission should have the power to close a season, but not to open. The latter would afford too much of an opportunity for personal influence. It might, be dangerous.

DISTRIBUTION IS BLAMED FOR HIGH PRICES OF FOODS

Returns to Farmers Are Way Down, but Not Cost to Consumer

BY W. F. WINSEY

Green Bay — A somewhat hasty study of the markets of dairy products, meats and bread for the past year, reaching from the local producer and consumer to the Chicago and Milwaukee markets leads to the conclusion that the costs of distribution are the chief cause of underconsumption. Minor causes are unemployment and the curtailing of the family income. While farm prices have dropped to the lowest level since 1914, the consumer is still paying war prices for foods.

For instance while farmers about this city are getting three cents a quart for 3.5 per cent milk, the consumers are paying 12 and 14 cents per quart and 7 and 8 cents for pints, 36 cents for half pints of whipping cream, 40 cents a quart for coffee cream, 5 cents per quart for butter milk and $5.75 for each five gallons of ice cream. These prices were established when the farmer was getting from $2.50 to $3. per hundred pounds for 3.5 per cent milk years ago, and have not sagged with the general depression.

The consumer is paying from 25 to 35 cents per pound for American cheese for which the farmers get 14 cents per pound including 2 cents per pound for making. Butter is retailing at from 30 to 31 cents per pound.

With wheat at 75 cents per bushel and flour at $4.50 per barrel, the Green Bay consumer is paying from 12 to 15 cents per loaf for bread.

Set During War
These bread prices were established during the war when the farmer got $2 per bushel for his wheat and the baker paid $10 or more a barrel for flour.

Portion of the breakfast type of food at the Green Bay consumer is $1.50 to 49 cents per pound, sliced bacon from 15 to 16 cents per pound, liver 45 cents a pound, leg of veal, 28 to 32 cents per pound, pork loins, 23 cents per pound, Bologna sausage, 25 cents per pound, broilers, 26 cents per pound, springers, round dressed, 28 to 32 cents per pound and hens, 22 cents per pound.

Hogs the source of sausage, bacon and chops brought farmers in Chicago, today after paying shipping charges, 75 cents per pound, calves, the source of the legs of veal from 75 to 95 cents per pound and Bologna hams, 4 cents per pound. Housewives between Pulaski and Mill Center are getting today, 11 cents per pound for Lehigh hens and from 14 to 15 cents per pound for heavier varieties. They were getting from 14 to 16 cents per dozen for eggs. They were paying 10 cents a loaf for bread and 30 cents a pound for butter. Some of them in the farming communities were paying 35 cents for each two pounds of oleo.

Egg Prices Down
Last year at this time the price of eggs in the Chicago market was from 39 to 49 cents per dozen; of extra butter, 49 cents per pound; of chickens from 22 to 32 cents per pound; American cheese, 22 cents per pound; and flour $7.50 cents per barrel; hogs $10.50; canners $8.50 and Bologna hams $3.00. The days of those prices were glorious days for farmers and just as pleasant as present days for consumers.

A break in the Chicago market, February 3, drove the price of butter down to 23 and one-eighth cents, the lowest price ever known at this time of the year.

According to the January issue of The Federation Guide the United States sold storages of American cheese are 70,842,000 pounds which is 223,000 below that of last year at this time; creamery butter, 57,562,000 pounds which is 24,581,000 less than that of last year at that time; eggs case, $9.567,000 which is 27,795,000 more than at that time last year.

The most striking feature of the above comparisons is that drops in the farmers prices cause to drops whatever in consumer prices.

RURAL SCHOOL PUPILS HAVE WARM LUNCHES

Warm lunches are being served to pupils of the Badger rural school, according to a report from the teacher, Arnold Schulz to A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools. The lunches, which are served on two long tables in the basement, will continue to be served until about the middle of March. After that time Mr. Schulz plans to open a class in manual training, using the same space in the basement that is now utilized for a lunch room.

Avoid Disappointment By Sowing Seeds Carefully

Great disappointment will be avoided right from the start if proper care is taken in the sowing of seed. This is a point in successful gardening that cannot be too emphatically called to mind. Careful planting of seed is the necessary first start to a good garden.

Very often no germination results and the seedsman is blamed for poor seed. The seed usually is perfectly good. The fault was with the gardener. More seeds are lost after they have started to germinate than at any other time and it is this preventable loss during the germination period that should be carefully watched.

Seeds do not need rich soil. Fertility is not a prime necessity at all for seed germination. The fertility is needed after the seeds have germinated and the young plants have started into growth. Therefore any ordinary garden soil properly prepared by being sifted and given proper drainage will prove an excellent germination medium.

The seeds must be kept moist but not wet during the germinating period. Once the germ has broken the seed coat and the seed box, pot, or seed bed is allowed to dry out the tiny plant dries up and dies without ever getting above complaint of bad seed. The soil must be kept at an even degree of moisture and it must be watered often enough to maintain it but it never should be soaked so that it is in the condition of mud.

Hot sun, particularly if coupled with high winds, is a dangerous condition. They quickly dry out the soil and often shrivel seedlings that have gotten above ground safely. Therefore the seed bed should be protected from the hottest sun and should be in a sheltered position so that the force of a drying wind will be broken. This is one reason why a frame is preferable for outdoor seed sowing; the sides effectively break the force of any drying winds.

The greatest percentage of plants from a packet of seed will be obtained by sowing in seed boxes or pans because conditions can be maintained and controlled most easily. The seed box or pan or pot can be moved out of the sun. It can be easily shaded. It can be watered easily. Therefore with the choicer seeds it is advisable to sow in flats—another name for seed boxes used by professional growers, or in pots or pans being a trade name for shallow flower pots.

MORE PATIENTS ARE LISTED ON HEALTH DEPARTMENT ROLL

The unemployment wolf, not satisfied with parking on the doorstep of the city poor department, has been knocking at the door of the health department. Miss Alice Holtan, city nurse, took care of 39 more patients in December than were on the list in December, 1929, and made visits to 17 more homes than in 1929. Miss Holtan, who served 32 patients in 57 homes during the month, feels that a number of persons have come to the city for medical aid this winter who in former years were able to pay for their own doctor and nurse fees.

The nurse made 28 calls for the correction of defects, 29 for social service, 21 for prenatal care, 32 for diabetes, 15 for skin conditions, 10 for nephritis, eight each for measles and influenza, six for venereal disease, five each for colds and cancer, two each for tuberculosis and mental deficiency and one each for mental disease and mother's pension. She accompanied 15 persons to a doctor's office or the hospital. In November Miss Holtan cared for 80 patients in 56 homes.

Nurse Urges Mothers To "Count Calories"

A bulletin issued this week by Miss Marie Klein, county nurse, urges mothers of Outagamie-co to know how much food to give to children. In determining this vital factor in the health of a child, the nurse points out, mothers should "count calories" to determine if the child is getting an adequate diet.

The energy a given food is capable of yielding in the body is measured by the heat unit or calorie. Miss Klein says. By measuring the food intake in calories, it can easily be determined whether a child is receiving the right amount of food daily. A table, included with the bulletin, shows the following amount of calories needed by children of various ages:

From one to two years, 1,000 to 1,200 per day; two to five years, 1,200 to 1,500 per day; six to nine years, 1,400 to 2,000; 10 to 13 years, girls 1,800 to 2,400; 10 to 13 years, boys, 2,500 to 3,000; 14 to 17, girls, 2,500 to 3,000; 14 to 17, boys, 2,800 to 4,000.

Miss Klein's bulletin contains a sample menu for a four-year-old child, as well as a table listing various food and their calorie value.

What about Poultry Raising In 1931?

A Straight-from-the-Shoulder Message from the BADGER STATE CHICKERY to Those Interested in Securing Profits From Poultry.

RIGHT now, Mr. Farmer, you are studying mighty hard where to put your dollars for the best returns during this year. With most farm products at most disconcerting prices . . . with uncertainty everywhere, it is only natural that you give this matter more than your usual consideration. By presenting chicken raising as a suggestion we do not propose to have a universal remedy — no magical relief for those who are beyond all hope of recovery. But we do believe that poultry raising will prove to be the sustaining factor in many cases right here in the Appleton area. Look about you for proof, if you wish.

Are we forgetting that egg prices are lowest in many months? Are we shutting our eyes to all the evidence apparently against the poultry business? Not at all! Rather we are deeply conscious of the facts as they really are. We have looked below the surface — investigated instead of despairing. We believe that there is plenty of grounds for recommending poultry raising to any fairminded person.

In the first place, the present low price of eggs and poultry is to be expected — other products are correspondingly low and in many cases much lower. It is the result of an adjustment that has been taking place during the past year and just as surely as the direction has been downward the law of supply and demand will cause a sharp turn in the opposite direction in the near future.

Three Features of Poultry Raising

Three main things enter into poultry raising — namely, first cost of chicks and equipment, expense of feed and expense of care.

Let us consider the cost of chicks. This year we are offering chicks at a reduction of two to three cents at the start of the season. Price figures alone, however, can never tell the whole story. For egg production you must have chicks that will develop into hens that will produce. That's why it is important that you buy only ACCREDITED chicks from an accredited hatchery. Accreditation is your best assurance of highest quality chicks. When you buy accredited chicks it is like buying Government inspected meats. Every branch of the accredited hatchery's business is under strict state regulation. You are sure that the chicks you get are exactly as represented. Every flock from which we obtain eggs for hatching must pass a thorough inspection by the Wisconsin Department of Markets. Only vigorous, healthy flocks with proven production records and proper breeding are able to pass this inspection. Then mating is supervised and must be with outstanding males. Our long experience in the hatchery business here in Appleton has made it possible for us to keep in close contact with our flock owners and by practicing selected breeding we are able to produce a decidedly superior type of chick with the very highest production possibilities. Think of the advantages of owning such chicks. Success is undeniably more certain than with ordinary chicks. Thus, a consideration of the first cost of chicks proves the advisability of ACCREDITED chicks.

Need we mention that equipment costs have been reduced? Witness reductions in lumber, wire, roofing, etc.

Next comes feeds. Commercial feeds have dropped 20% and are developed to the last word in efficiency according to scientific research. For your convenience we maintain a supply of some of the market's most productive feeds which we do not hesitate to recommend. These feeds always sell at the lowest prevailing prices. Complete information is cheerfully furnished as to feeding procedure without obligation.

Now as to expense of care — that is a problem for you to figure out. Everyone expects a reasonable return for their time and efforts and rightly so. With the economies we have already mentioned, we believe that poultry raising offers an outstanding opportunity for gainful employment.

Clearly poultry raising is worthy of your investigation. You can now purchase select, guaranteed chicks at low prices. — Equipment costs less — feeds are most reasonable. No large investment is required to house and feed a good sized flock for an entire season. With the advance in the prices of eggs and chickens almost certain you are in a far more favorable position than ever before to receive great returns from this fascinating industry.

Next Monday, Feb. 9th, marks the official opening of our season. That is when we set the first batch of eggs for hatching. It is unnecessary for us to go into a lengthy description here of the weeks of preparation that have been undergone to make our 1931 chicks the very highest quality possible. That is a story by itself. Let it suffice to mention that former customers are rapidly signing up for our production.

One thing we wish you to remember is that we are one of the biggest hatchery operators in this vicinity and greatly prefer to sell to flock owners close at home. We can provide chicks in a selection of breeds equal to any you can buy elsewhere at obvious savings in transportation. Delivery is accomplished so much easier. Simply state when you wish your chicks and they will be ready for you.

A written guarantee accompanies every sizable order and means a great deal more to you because we're right here ready to stand behind it. First of all, we are a home industry and know that we must give satisfaction to endure.

The important thing as we see it is to realize the value of early chicks. They are well along and producing when later ones are scarcely getting started. Everything points to a continued mild winter and early spring. Care will be a minor problem this season. START EARLY FOR GREATER PROFITS!

If you wish expert advice concerning poultry raising we have organized a staff of experts who are ready to call at your home at any time. Their services are for both old and new customers and involve no obligations.

If possible, arrange to visit our plant personally. It is modern in every detail and will prove most interesting. You are assured of courteous, intelligent service at all times.

Corrupt Practices Bill Favors Progressive Party, Claim

BADGER G. O. P. LEADER HITS PROPOSED LAW

Coleman Says He Thinks Bill Would "Cripple Regular Republican Faction"

Madison, (AP)—The proposed new state Corrupt Practices act favors the Progressive faction and injures the Conservative branch of the Republican party in Wisconsin, in the opinion of Thomas E. Coleman, campaign manager for the Conservatives last year.

"I think you have gone too far in this bill," Coleman told the assembly judiciary committee at a public hearing on the new bill yesterday. "I think you are crippling the regular Republican faction and I think you are eliminating the only organization we have ever had."

The bill limits expenditures of a gubernatorial candidate to the filing of expense accounts. It is drafted by the committee composed of Senators George W. Blanchard, Edgerton, and Oscar H. Morris, Milwaukee, and Assemblymen J. W. Carow, Ladysmith, Moulton G. Goff, Sturgeon Bay, and Robert A. Nixon, Washburn.

Coleman said the bill did not go far enough in curbing the abuse of the franking privilege. Although a congressman or senator must, under the bill, file each franked letter as regular postage, there is nothing to prevent a legislator's colleague from another state to aid in the campaign without filing expenses. Mr. Coleman said.

Postage rates on "Labor," a newspaper published in Washington which has long supported Progressives in Wisconsin, would be held against a candidate's expense account, the committee told Mr. Coleman. The latter declared that to circulate a paper like "Labor" at regular printer's rates would cost $10,000.

"It should not be necessary for a candidate for governor of Wisconsin to have to pull strings at Washington to get $10,000 worth of assistance like this," he said.

Assemblyman David Sigman, two Rivers, offered the committee an amendment to the bill which would prohibit employers from threatening to discharge or to raise or lower wages in an attempt to influence employee's votes. Reports or rumors that such coercion was attempted would be investigated by the industrial commission, under the amendment.

Conventions would be held every six months to one year in jail or a fine of $500 to $500.

CHAMBER TO VOTE ON UTILITY BILLS

Name Committee to Make Thorough Study of Two Legislative Measures

The chamber of commerce directors will make a thorough study of the two public utility bills before the state legislature, it was decided at a meeting at Hotel Northern Friday afternoon. A committee was appointed to investigate the measures and prepare reports which are to be sent to the chamber membership.

Several directors have voiced opposition to the bills, on the grounds that they do not approve of the government going into business.

The committee is composed of William Faldut, chairman, John R. Riedl, Frank Wheeler and L. J. Marshall.

The board also discussed methods of stimulating more home building in Appleton. It was pointed out that home building in this city has been falling off during the past year. Reports of John Welland, city building inspector, to the Appleton chamber of commerce on building, were reviewed.

It also was decided to appropriate $100 to the Blue Streaks, Appleton hockey team. The local team expects to enter the state hockey tournament at Port Atkinson next weekend.

Injuries are fatal to tractor firm founder

Racine, (AP)—H. M. Wallis, Sr., 69, founder of the tractor company bearing his name and retired president of the J. I. Case Flow works, died here last night of injuries suffered in an automobile accident Nov. 11. He was widely known in club circles and for his charity work here and in Chicago.

Until a few days ago, when he was moved to the home of his sister, he had been in a hospital since Dec. 28. He was injured when, in a fog, he drove his automobile off a private road on his estate at Wind Point, north of here. The machine went down the Lake Shore bluff. Mr. Wallis suffered injuries to his head and neck.

Following his retirement several years ago, Mr. Wallis devoted his time to charities and breeding prize cattle.

Funeral services will be held from the Wallis residence at 2:30 p. m. Monday. Burial will be in Mount Carmel cemetery.

JUNIOR C. C. HOCKEY TEAM AT OSHKOSH

OPEN BIDS MONDAY AT WASHINGTON ON NEW POST OFFICE

Bids on Appleton's new post office, which is to be constructed at the southwest corner of Superior and Washington streets, will be opened Monday morning at the federal treasury department offices at Washington, D. C. The new building is to cost about $190,000. The balance of the appropriation was used to pay for a site and for the cost incidental to the erection of a building. W. H. Zuelke, acting postmaster here, said this morning that he probably would be a month before the contract is awarded. Another month would be required by the contractor to prepare for building, and it is likely that actual construction will start early in April.

INCREASED TAX ON GAS WOULD LOWER PROPERTY TAXES

Senator Points Out Bill Will Reduce Taxes Rather Than Increase Spending

(Editor's Note: Following is the second of a series of five articles by Sen. John P. Cashman, Democrat, pointing out the important features of the administration highway bill, which he introduced.)

Madison, (AP)—"The highway bill provides for an increase in the tax on motor fuel from two cents per gallon," Senator Cashman wrote. "Under the provisions of the bill the increased revenues are so allocated that a decrease in general property tax is made possible in an amount equal to or greater than such increase. In other words the increased gas tax revenues are used to reduce general property taxes rather than to expand highway expenditures. Such reductions are brought about by the return of substantial amounts to the various towns, villages and cities, which are unnecessary and very taxes for these purposes. These returns are the following:

There is allotted from the increased gas tax for the improvement of town roads and city and village streets, an additional $1,000,000, and as state aid to counties for county trunk highways an additional amount of $800,000, or a total of $1,800,000 to these classes of roads, both of which serve local purposes.

"There is returned to each town, city and village, in lieu of the existing personal property tax collected from the assessments against motor vehicles, a sum estimated to be $5,000,000 annually, which in no case shall be less than the motor vehicle personal property tax collected from the tax levy of 1930.

"The bill provides further that each county shall meet its highway bond obligations in the state aid to counties for state trunk highway ways, to the extent of the amount of such bonds maturing each year. The amount required to meet such obligation will average $4,000,000 annually for the next five years. The reduction in property tax by this feature of the bill is estimated $3,600,000 annually for this peak period of bond retirement.

"In addition to the mechanical allotment to counties for state trunk highway maintenance in 1930 the state county boards appropriated a total of $550,000 for additional necessary maintenance and $770,000 for snow removal. These two amounts, totaling $1,320,000 were provided by a tax on general property. The bill provides that the state shall pay the entire cost of state trunk highway maintenance including snow removal and therefore these amounts are a direct reduction in general property tax.

"The several amounts above enumerated, when expended under the provisions of bill 29, will make possible a reduction in general property tax for highway purposes in an amount at least equal to the revenue from the two cent gas tax increase which is estimated to be $9,400,000 for the 1931-32 fiscal year."

HORTONVILLE MAN HURT AS CAR LEAVES ROAD

James Stead, Hortonville, was injured about 5 o'clock Friday afternoon when the car he was driving went into the ditch about a half mile south of Hortonville on the Hortonville-Medina road. Stead was taken to the hospital and arms. He was taken to Hortonville for treatment by Harry Frye, a farmer. Stead said he did not know how the car happened to go into the ditch.

1931 Medicinal Whisky Is Ordered From Distillers

Washington, (AP)—Orders for the manufacture of one million gallons of medicinal whisky in 1931 are being sent to distillers in Pennsylvania and Kentucky by the industrial alcohol bureau of the treasury department.

The action is in compliance with the prohibition law which requires the government to keep an ample stock of medicinal whisky available. The prohibition bureau last year started to replenish the dwindling supply of the legal whisky which had decreased to approximately 8,500,000 gallons. Manufacture was started in 1929.

About 1,500,000 gallons of medicinal liquor are used in the United States each year and the law requires it be aged four years before be continued. In the medical school the gain in class enrollment during the past five years has been more than twice as great as the gain in the medical school budget, he said. "Turning to the governor's assertion that the acquisitive spirit has no place in education, Dr. Frank invited an inspection of the methods by which salaries at the university are determined. He said competing institutions have removed outstanding men from the faculty at the University of Wisconsin when a fraction of the salary increase offered by other schools would have induced them to remain here.

"If there is a single instance in the record of the last five years in which auction block standards of methods have been permitted to determine salary at the university, I should be interested to have the instance indicated," President Frank said.

Keep Old Ideals

"It is suggested that 25 years ago the thing that held scholars at Wisconsin was not salary but opportunity for creative work and a dynamic group spirit. If I did not think this were true today, I should not be interested in the University of Wisconsin."

Dr. Frank admitted that there is "dead wood" in the University of Wisconsin but said it was justified because of its relation to academic freedom.

"Unless the scholars of a university are free—and are made to feel free—to prosecute their investigations without fear of interference and to publish their findings without fear of consequence, the university would as well close its doors, for without this guaranty and feeling of guaranty a university dies as a seat of unfettered learning and lingers on only as an agency of propaganda and partisanship."

There are but three safeguards of academic freedom, he said. One is the courage of the scholar who would lose his position and make his family suffer rather than conveniently remould his convictions. Another is the university administrator who will surrender everything before permitting the infringement of a scholar's freedom. Security of tenure, the president listed thirdly.

"If scholars... in the upper ranks are ever put in the position where their security of tenure is likely to be denied with every change in the presidency on the ground of the president's personal judgment of their work, the priceless bulwark of academic freedom is gone," he said.

"The problem of keeping the staff of a university vital—save in occasional cases of gross incompetence or misconduct—must be met in an intelligent sifting and selecting of men before they reach the upper ranks."

Snow was predicted over most of midwestern Friday night and Saturday. Approximately 10 inches of snow fell in the vicinity of Milwaukee, and sleet was reported in Illinois.

Winds are shifting in the north and northeast, a good indication that wet weather will prevail. At 6 o'clock Saturday morning the mercury registered 22 degrees above zero, while at noon it registered 28 degrees.

COP FINED ON DRY LAW CHARGE LOSES HIS JOB

Chicago, (AP)—The probationary policeman, Benjamin Bernacki, who was fined $200 as a liquor law violator on the same day he was graduated from the police training school, was no longer a member of the police department force today.

Bernacki was to have appeared before a federal judge last Wednesday morning on the liquor charge. He failed to come in during the morning, but appeared in the afternoon, explaining that he had been detained at the police graduating exercises.

General Weather

During the past 24 hours rain or snow has occurred in the lake region, Ohio and upper Mississippi and Missouri valleys, with four inches of snow reported on the ground this morning at Madison, Wis., and in northern Iowa. Fair and continued cold prevails in the upper St. Lawrence valley and New England states, with four to six inches of snow reported this morning from Quebec. Navy Makes Targets Of Ghost Ships Mare Island, Calif., (AP)—The "ghost ships" of the American navy soon will be making unannounced Pacific voyages to serve as targets for the guns of their younger sisters.

Sailed by invisible forces, these obsolete men-o-war will be subjected to a plugging, methodical gunnery which they will be able to withstand for a considerable time before taking the final plunge to Davy Jones' locker.

Experiments with the radio-controlled destroyer Stoddard led officers of the navy yard here yesterday to decide upon the use of other obsolete fighting craft in this manner. Many old destroyers, some of which are relics of the World war, are available.

From ship or shore station, the Stoddard can be operated and maneuvered by radio. Without an officer on her bridge or a man at her helm she can do everything but return the fire when her sister ships open up.

The obsolete destroyers cost about $700,000 each and now are valued at about $5,000. Hence they will be cheaper than the raft targets now being used. These raft targets cost about $15,000 each, and during gunnery practice have to be towed at 7 or 8 knots. The radio-controlled ships will be able to make better speed.

These "ghost ships" also will give the navy's aerial fighter something real to shoot at.

CHICAGO BOOK STORE OWNER PAYS $100 FINE

Chicago, (AP)—Rev. Phillip Yarrow who said he would brook no libel, continued his campaign on "printed filth" today after adding one notch to his campaign pistol yesterday.

Yarrow, superintendent of the Illinois vigilance association, "read" Albert Goldman's book store, carrying off copies of "Lady Chatterley's Lover," by D. H. Lawrence; "My Life and Loves," by Frank Harris, and other books. Goldman was fined $100, half of which was turned over to the informer, George Brown, employed by the vigilantes.

When Yarrow launched his present campaign he informed newspapers and press association that he would stand no libel. He said he had suffered extensively during the "last campaign, and that he said "no other cheek to turn" during this one.

Grand Jury Probes Report Of Attack On Dry Agents

"I don't remember all of the details," he said. "I was seated at home reading shortly after 8 o'clock Monday night when my son told me some men were peeping in the windows. We've been bothered considerably in our neighborhood by window peepers. Beggars also have made pests of themselves. So from the start I assumed they were undesirable characters."

Thought Fakers

"I went to the door and yelled at three men in the yard and asked them what they wanted. One of them, who I afterward learned was Whisman, told me they were government men. It was dark. I thought the men were posing as government men so they could get close to me and grab me. I never for a moment suspected they were what they claimed to be. I'm an old resident here, and I didn't dream for one would come here looking for liquor, because they would have no occasion to do so."

Storm didn't recall distinctly just what his next actions were, except that the fight started when the man came closer to him. There were numerous blows, he said, some struck by him and others by his opponent. He was struck several times, he said.

Didn't See Credentials

He might have grabbed Whisman's credentials, he said, to determine just what they were. They were not shown to him he said until after the fight.

Agents told police Stern had snatched Whisman's credentials, containing his name and address, before the battle and hung on to them desperately. The credentials, badly crumpled up, were finally wrested from the civilian by one of the other agents, police were told.

The agents did not try to enter the Stern home after the battle, police said.

Storm Tells Story

The report of the call on the police blotter is as follows: "On Feb. 1, 8:30 p. m.—Wagon. Returned $50 p. m. 1213 W. Wabasha st. Disturbance reported there. Storm who is an old resident of this city, and has conducted a wedding business there for ten years, told his version of the affair.

COUPLE DIVORCED AFTER BEING WED ALMOST 50 YEARS

After more than 49 years of married life, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Davis of Hortonville were divorced in municipal court before Judge Theodore Berg yesterday.

The divorce was granted to Mrs. Delina Davis, 67, from her husband, Melvin, 70. The suit for divorce was started by the husband, but Mrs. Davis contested and won the decree. The husband charged his wife with desertion and cruel and inhuman treatment. He claimed she nagged him and told him she did not love him. Mrs. Davis counterclaimed, charging her mate with being cruel. She said he nagged her and failed to provide properly for her. The Davises have two children, but they are not affected by the decree. In lieu of alimony a division of property was agreed on. Each will receive about $3,500.

TAX COMMISSION MAN BACK IN CITY FOR REVALUATION

Work Will Be Completed This Year, Mayor John Goodland, Jr., Reports

L. J. Rhein, state tax commission man in charge of the revaluation of Appleton, has returned to his work in Appleton after a month's absence because of illness.

It was decided Friday to finish revaluation this year. It was thought that perhaps Mr. Rhein's illness would delay the job so it could not be finished in time for the session of the board of review in the fall, but Mr. Rhein assured the mayor Friday that the work could be pushed through to completion.

Mr. Rhein and George P. Packer, city assessor will continue the foundation work, and as soon as the proper negotiations can be made a group of assessors will start the field work. The mailing of personal property notices will be reserved for rainy days, so the field men will have work to do on the days they are unable to work in the field.

"KID BROTHER," 87, TRYING TO ANNUL WEDDING OF ELDER

Chicago, (AP)—The wedding of Theodore Wells, 91, and Anna Naylor, 48, was under consideration by Judge Daniel P. Trude today following arguments in an annulment action instituted by Herbert Wells, 57, referred to by defense counsel as the older man's "kid brother."

Herbert Wells, who lives in Kingston, R. I., charged that Miss Naylor, who had been Theodore's nurse for ten years, married Theodore last August for his money. He had inherited $80,000 from his first wife. The Rhode Island man also charged that his brother's bride had spent $7,500 of the inheritance.

Attorney Sidney Gorman, representing Mrs. Wells, told the court that she was not the type of woman who would "squander the money."

"Anyway," he asserted, "the kid brother is probably jealous because Theodore has such an attractive wife."

Two Escape From Prison In England

Princeton, England, (AP)—Nobody in history has ever succeeded in making good his escape from dread Dartmoor prison near here but two desperate men today were making a bold attempt to break the record.

They are John Mullins and John Michael Gaskin, one a forger and desperado and the other a burglar. Both are serving long sentences.

They effected their getaway yesterday by slipping from the tall a marching line of convicts within the prison enclosure and scaling 32-foot wall by means of a secreted rope ladder.

More than 50 armed wardens spent the entire night in searching the desolate mist-shrouded moor surrounding the isolated prison and today spread themselves out in an ever widening circle. Bloodhounds were brought out and hunted through miles of thick undergrowth but without result.

Such few houses and cottages as stand in the lonely district were kept bolted and barred. The women of the district are terror-stricken. The region is one of the most forbidding in England, abounding in bottomless bogs. No water fit to drink is available and roads leading from the edges, always closely guarded, are now being watched more closely than ever.

BIRTHS

SILVER PRICE IN SLUMP FOR OVER 10 YEARS

Conflict in China and India
Largely to Blame for Steady Decline

New York — (P) — What's the matter with silver? Why has this theoretically precious metal, to which half of the earth's population is attached by economic or social ties, been dropping for ten years, from a price of $1.35 an ounce immediately after the World War, to the current quotation of around 27 cents? Why is its ratio to gold now 76 to 1 contrasted with the memorable 16 to 1 championed at the turn of the century?

The prosaic answer, of course, is that the law of supply and demand operates in silver as in any other commodity. But behind this rule is a vast world drama which has been unfolding during the course of a decade and which, perhaps, has not reached its climax.

Civil war in China, political strife in India, the increased supplies of silver made available by modern methods of copper production, the sale of surplus stocks by governments—these are some of the forces which have upset silver's equilibrium.

There is a difference of opinion as to which factors have been most responsible. On the one hand the silver producers say: Stop offerings of silver by interested governments—chiefly India—and the pressure will be relieved. On the other hand, some economists contend, cut the world output, which has remained fairly constant for years, and the burden forced on China, as the largest user of silver, will be lightened.

Most taken by China, India, China and India, together, take most of the silver produced, which has been between 200,000,000 and 250,000,000 ounces annually in the last five years. In 1930 those two countries absorbed about 200,000,000 ounces but the lion's share went to China, the only large nation with a monetary system based on silver. India treats the metal as a commodity.

Thus, in the opinion of many observers, the problem narrows down to China's ability to absorb the supply. Internal wars in that country have weakened her commercially as well as politically. Her trade has been so disrupted that she has no gold balance with which to buy silver; on the contrary, her preponderance of imports forces her to sell the metal in order to purchase gold in exchange in payment for foreign goods.

The Indian laborer who scrapes together an extra rupee or two exchanges his coined wealth for a government note. This, in turn he sells for raw silver which he promptly adds to his little hoard, frequently burying it in the earthen floor of his hut. The amount of silver thus stored away is enormous; the total has been estimated at between five and eight billion ounces. Some of the store goes into trinkets and dainties, but for the most part it remains hidden and unused.

When the rupee was put on a gold basis in 1926 India decided to sell a reserve of nearly 500,000,000 ounces of silver. About 100,000,000 ounces have been disposed of.

It has been suggested that one way out of the silver dilemma would be an extension of the metal's commercial uses. Industry has long employed silver for table and jewelry and more recently puts it to work in the form of silver salts for the manufacture of motion picture film. Recently, however, the film industry has found a method of extracting silver from old films and using it again, so this promising market lost its lustre.

Patri Says Child Must Read Papers

BY ANGELO PATRI

Just as soon as our children can read they should be taught to read the newspaper. They begin to learn the fun of it. Why not? You can scarcely expect a seven year old to turn to the editorial page. He arrives there by degrees, provided he is shown the way.

Newspapers can supply a young man or woman with a good education. All that is necessary is a willing, eager mind, and a newspaper and a little time. Here, spread out in clear language, is the daily history of the world. History is made day by day and it has a present day character that is as imperative as that of centuries gone by. It is important that the youth of the land know their present day history so that a broad basis of understanding is laid early. The latest speech of a premier, the latest news of an invention, the discovery of a scientist is essential food for the minds and characters of our youth. All the world passes in parade before our children every morning. It behooves us to see that they have a good place, well up in front and that nothing escapes their eagle eyes.

"Oh, there is so much crime in the papers. There is so much that is vulgar. I do not like to have the children read the papers. Wait until they are older."

Older than what? Older how? It is experience that brings maturity and children are busy gathering experiences without the consent of their teachers and parents. We must get in our world first and make it the most appealing if we are not to lose out. Children to whom the papers are banned at home will get them out of the house without benefit of advice. Would it not be better to furnish the paper and let the advice yourself?

The children like the funnies. Funnies appeal to the child in us. Naturally the children turn to them over and by and find the sport sheet and the fashion sheet and the pictures. They will read headlines and the articles and by the trouble to point their readings, show the children how to get the most out of it.

Making scrap books is one of the very best ways. Have these of uniform size and provide for their filling. Each child makes his own book according to his tastes. One gathering set of books that makes in 10 or 20 years. Another child follows the fortunes of one person, or one cause, or a hobby. The newspaper offers richness for all.

Good taste in the selection of the family paper is just as essential as it is in the selection of the family library. There is a wide range. Out of the many there are enough to supply any taste, any tradition, any need. But one paper in the family there must be. If you do not supply it the children will and they need guidance and light in order to choose wisely.

The newspaper is one of the major educational forces in the world. It is a great mistake to attempt to ignore this and tell the children they are too young for it. They are never too young to gather experiences, they never cease to gather them and reading the newspaper is one of their daily activities, like it or not. Better help than hinder.

LARGE CROWD SEES PROGRAM BY GIRL CLUB

About 125 persons witnessed the entertainment given by the Appleton Girls' club under auspices of Group No. 3 of the Women's Union of First Baptist church Friday evening in the recreation room of the church. Washington Society In Gay Whirl Before Lent Arrives

BY SALLIE V. H. PICKETT

Washington —(AP)— With but little more than a week left before Ash Wednesday and the start of Lent, Washington society is having its last gay whirl, the program increasing in velocity as the end of the winter approaches.

For President and Mrs. Hoover there are yet many events in store. They are not only religiously carrying out the set formula of state affairs but adding to it.

Chief of their entertainments this week was the annual dinner in honor of Speaker and Mrs. Longworth Thursday night and next Wednesday the Army and Navy reception tops the list.

Before the reception President and Mrs. Hoover will dine with Attorney Mitchell and Mrs. William Dewitt Mitchell, who have as a house guest Miss Helen Bunn of St. Paul. Miss Bunn has been invited to attend the Women's National Press club cabaret dinner Monday night and Mrs. Mitchell will give a luncheon or something of the kind for her.

Even with her many other activities Mrs. Hoover finds time to sit for her portrait, play with her grandchildren, carry on her correspondence and activities for the girl scouts, attend concerts and many other lesser affairs. Wednesday morning she took with her to a musicale Mrs. Edward Everett Cann, who has out many social affairs to nurse her convalescent husband; Mrs. Hoover, Jr., who has arrived for a visit with her children; Mrs. John Q. Tilson, Mrs. Wallace H. White, Jr., Mrs. Trubee Davidson, and Mrs. Lewis Strauss of New York.

While President and Mrs. Hoover were entertaining Speaker and Mrs. Longworth Thursday night the vice-president and his sister Mrs. Cann, were enjoying a reception at the Congressional club.

Oklahomans are very much in the foreground of social affairs just now and more than a few are Secretary of War and Mrs. Hurley. They often have as many as three or four social engagements in a day.

Princess Margaret Boncompagni, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William F. Deane of Washington and Massachusetts, is again in Washington, never having missed a hair which so disfigures a pretty face, hair under arms or on forearms, any unwanted hair can be removed for all time. Kurelmul Vanishing Cream for daytime use does just as good work as Kurelmul Night Cream. Ask for booklet. Sold by

LAUDS NATION'S STAND TOWARD
LATIN AMERICA

Stimson Criticizes President
Wilson's Policy on Recognition

New York — (P) — Criticism of President Wilson's policy toward Latin America was coupled by Secretary Stimson Friday night with high praise of this country's general attitude for a century past toward the republics lying to the south.

Addressing the Council of Foreign Relations, the secretary of state outlined the American policy of recognition, and characterized the United States stand upon the tariff in arms to countries suffering from internal strife as "blatant the way for the subsequent growth of the law of nations."

He took occasion also to answer "criticism of our decisions" concerning recognition of the seven Latin American republics overthrown by revolution in the past 10 months, and at the same time save his interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine as "a declaration of the United States versus Europe—not of the United States versus Latin America."

Admitting some "temporary intrusions into the domestic affairs of some" Latin American republics, Stimson maintained that the United States "policy, in its general conception, has been a noble one." He asserted, however, it had been "radically departed from" by President Wilson.

In 1913, the Secretary of State said, the late president decreed co-operation was possible only when the government concerned was based upon law, not upon arbitrary or irregular force, and then put his policy into effect in respect to recognizing the government of President Victoriano Huerta in Mexico.

Cites Huerta's Case
"Although Huerta's government was in de facto possession," Stimson said, "Mr. Wilson refused to recognize it, and he sought through the influence and pressure of his great office to force it from power. Armed conflict followed with the forces of Mexico, and disturbed relations between us and that republic that lasted until a comparatively few years ago."

"The present administration has refused to follow the policy of Mr. Wilson and has followed consistently the former practice of this government since the days of Jefferson."

"As soon as it was reported to us through our diplomatic representatives, that the new governments in Bolivia, Peru, Argentina, Brazil and Panama were in control of the administrative machinery of the state, with the apparent general acquiescence of their people, and they were willing and apparently able to discharge their international and conventional obligations, they were recognized by our government."

Follow Set Policy
Stimson added that this policy had been uniformly followed by the present administration save where affected by preexisting treaty.

The recently recognition of Guatemala was described as falling under this latter category. Stimson explained that the United States had agreed to adhere to a treaty adopted by Guatemala, Honduras, Salvador, Nicaragua and Costa Rica. Under it recognition would not be granted if the new president of the country concerned had been a leader in a preceding revolution. The new Guatemalan government, he added, was recognized only after the resignation of General Orellana, who set himself up as provisional president last December. "The distinction between this departure, which was suggested by the five republics themselves and in which we have acted at their earnest desire and in cooperation with them," he said, "and in the departure taken by President Wilson in an attempt to force upon Mexico a policy which she resented must be apparent to the most thoughtful student."

Secretary Stimson warmly defended and praised the American policy governing the exportation of arms and ammunition to countries engaged in civil war. It grew, he said, from a resolution adopted by Congress in 1902 providing the maintenance of "an embargo upon the exportation of all arms and munitions which might reach the rebels," but permitting their sale to the government whose power was threatened.

In the case of Brazil, where the government was overthrown shortly after the United States had agreed to ship its arms, Stimson said he had been "criticized for taking sides in that civil strife."

He maintained, however, there was no necessity of maintaining neutrality until the belligerency of the Brazilian rebels had been recognized either by this country or Brazil.

In a final argument for the upholding of a policy under which only the government in power should be supported, he said:

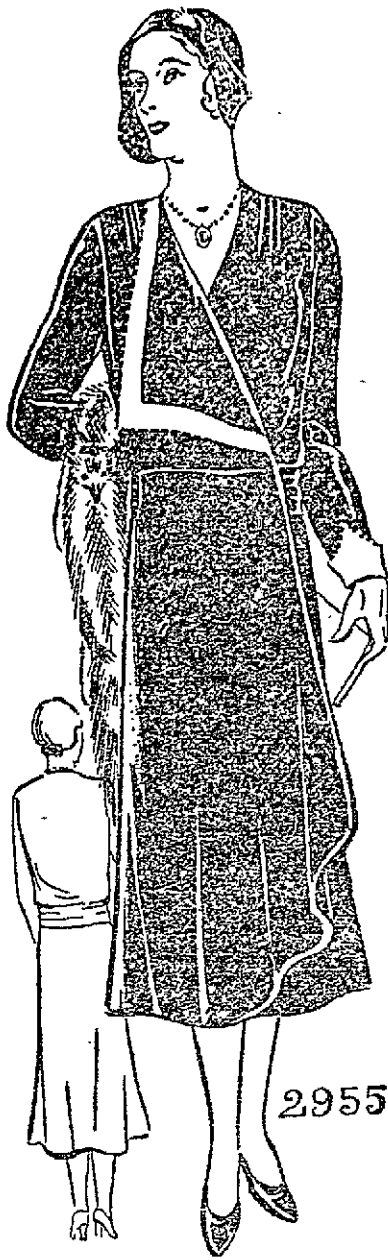

"I had little difficulty in reaching the conclusion that those who argued for the liberty of our munitions manufacturers to continue for profit a traffic which was staining with blood the soil of the Central American Republics were not progressive in international law or practice."

CHECK UP ON YOUR BEAUTY
TO STAY LOVELY

BY ALICIA HART

Isn't it a curious thing that all your friends will notice an added pound or two before you do? And, isn't it queer, too, that intimates, seeing you after a few months or years have elapsed, will notice that you have grown older, when you really feel just the same yourself?

Check up on your beauty if you intend keeping it. You don't trust the laundry with your sheets and table linen without looking the package over and checking on it. How can you trust Time—the greatest thief of all—with your beauty, without checking it?

First of all, get that bathroom scales habit. I am not one who thinks women should grow rounded and scrawny trying to look like their debutante daughters in slenderness. Every season of life has its own beauties. The mature woman looks better and feels better, with roundness to her figure, rather than angularness which by no means means little youth.

But, I certainly do not like the over-stuffed women. I think they hate themselves too. So, check up on what you yourself think is the normal weight for yourself, that weight at which you look best and feel best and stay there. Nothing keeps you there the way the bathroom scales habit does. Cultivate it.

Next to the bathroom scales habit comes the honest-mirror habit. Now, personally, I believe every woman, once she has done her best in the confines of her own boudoir, should have a re-shaded mirror, cord-lighted, to glance into as she dashes out of the front door. That will set her up and give her that confidence she needs. But, having this flattering type of mirror in your boudoir where you should know the worst and correct it, is folly.

There are new mirrors that magnify the features, showing the exact condition of the skin. I must confess they are discouraging. But, if you are valiant, they will spur you on to rectify the mistakes in skin and hair care that are showing up.

Next to the truth mirror comes the full mirror. No woman should live without one. Going through life

The Story of Sue

WHAT did you do?"
Only Sue knew about the lag which Jack had discovered in the furnace room and had concealed in his overcoat pocket. She asked the question but already the answer was forming in her mind.

"That fellow called Mac had an overcoat exactly like mine. The three coats were here together. And I stuck the evidence he wanted in his own pocket!"

For a second there was a pause in the room. Then Sue started to laugh. She couldn't help it. It was a relief from the tension under which she had been struggling. The others caught the humor of it and the laughter echoed through the rooms.

"To think that we spent all that time trying to keep them from the truck and then... then gave them what they wanted," Sue gasped at last. "It's all right, Jack. Don't worry. They would have found it anyway, if you hadn't been here."

"We have to get busy now, quick," Jack explained. "I've got to make the men believe that we were holding that bag to spring it as part of our testimony against somebody else. The thing was planted here. I'm sure of that. Mrs. Merryman, can you recall who has been in the house in the last day or two? Or was there any time the house was left unguarded?"

"No, not for a minute. I have not been away at all," she answered. "And I've had the doors locked all the time. Let's see... the gas man came to read the meter yesterday."

"The same man who always comes?" Jack asked quickly.

"No, a new one. He said the other man was ill, I believe."

"Can you describe him?" Jack asked.

Mrs. Merryman answered slowly, groping for details. "He wasn't very tall but his coat collar was up and his hat was pulled down... Of course it would be, if he was trying to conceal himself, wouldn't it? And he had a flash-light. He was thin, too, very thin. Why did I not think about spies?"

"It's all right. Nobody would expect you to," Jack answered. "And now another thing. I wonder why Sybil Lester sent flowers tonight, unless it was to prove her sympathy interest to someone... the detectives or the law or something. And that opens the trail as to why she should want to prove it. I'm as certain that she knows something as I am that the bag isn't in my pocket. Now the point is to find out what it is. Are your neighbors congenial, Mrs. Merryman?"

When she nodded he went on. "It's early. I think I'll inquire if a new gas man called on any of them. He surely had sense enough to include several houses. Maybe someone knows how he looked. And when the gas company opens in the morning I can check up on whether they had a new man reading meters on this beat. We may be miles off. But I have a hunch we're on the right clew."

Sue slipped into her coat and went with Jack as he made his inquiries. Grace's mother, Mrs. Metcalf, remembered the new gas man.

"I've seen him some place before," she added. "He had a familiar look. But he puzzled me."

The next morning Jack dropped in again at the Merryman home.

"I've been to the gas company's office," he said.

"And what did you find?" Sue asked quickly.

NEXT: Jack's report.

Knowing how you look from the waist up but never seeing your feet and head at the same glance, is just too horrible. Long mirrors need not be extravagantly expensive. Search second-hand stores. Have the old-time frame removed and get a carpenter to sink them in the panels of your closet door. Then you can know that, for better or for worse, you have a complete view of yourself.

WE WOMEN

By Virginia Vane

BY VIRGINIA VANE
LOVE MEANS SOMETHING DIFFERENT TO EVERYONE

Dear Virginia Vane: I am very much in love with my husband and would be perfectly happy were it not that we had one difference of opinion which spoils our happiness. I love our little home and in the evening think there is nothing more perfect than sitting in front of our own fire, talking or reading. I have no desire to know other people since my husband means everything in the world to me. And if he cared for me, he would feel just as I do. But he is constantly urging me to make friends with other people so that we can take up bridge and have dinner parties, etc. He is always suggesting that we call up some people we know and invite them over for the evening. Also he seems to want to go on parties, etc. This makes me feel that he isn't suited to me. Also that he doesn't love me as I know the meaning of the word "love."—AMELIA.

You're only looking at your side of the picture. You're only thinking of love as the kind of feeling you have for your husband. It doesn't occur to you that he may have his sort of love and it may be shown quite differently.

You're obviously the type of person who prefers to be alone with the man she loves — quite away from all the rest of the world. You imagine therefore that no one who truly loves can feel differently. But I've known plenty of men and women who were never happier than when they were with those they loved, among friends.

A man very often feels happiest and most contented when he has his dear wife at the head of his table, entertaining the friends he loves best. He feels completely at his best then. He is proud of his home, proud of his wife. And his love for her is stronger than ever if she bends every effort toward showing real hospitality.

You can't regulate the household to suit yourself. You've got to compromise. If your husband is a gregarious sort of chap who likes to entertain regularly, you've got to set aside a few evenings to entertaining, and make yourself like it. You can't shut that side of life away from you simply because you think your love is too perfect to spoil with the presence of others.

You can make those quiet evenings in front of the fire twice as attractive for your man, if you give him the sort of evening he wants in between times.

Don't let yourself grow hurt and moody over his idea of a good time. He may love you far more than you suppose, and yet feel the necessity of having friends. If you keep friends away from him, you will make him unhappy and his love for you will decrease. Don't hope to hold him away from all the rest of the world and bind him to you more strongly. It can't be done.

And let me assure you that it is far wiser and safer to surround yourself with friends than to depend absolutely on one man for happiness, companionship, friendship, entertainment, everything. If you put that much dependence on one human being—no matter who it may be—you are running a grave risk. Sooner or later you will want those outside interests that you have neglected — you will need those friends you have estranged, you will long for something in the world to lean on other than the one human being who, because you have expected too much from him, has failed you.

Give your husband the normal happy life that he wants, and you will have all the happiness you can possibly stand.

LILIAN: Yours was a very foolish action and you can blame neither the boy nor his mother if they find it impossible to forgive you. Never again resort to such a desperate measure in order to win a boy back. You have sacrificed much self-respect in doing this and that sort of sacrifice is never worth while.

COMMITTEE SEEKING MORE DATA ON JOBS

More data on the employment situation in Appleton was asked by the President's Emergency Committee on Employment in a letter to Mayor John Goodland Jr., this week. The committee is seeking figures on the number of employees on the city payroll, and the number on the payrolls of contractors doing city work.

Fashions
in Women.. have changed

It used to be fashionable to be stupid about money matters. Women especially weren't supposed to understand them. Those who did pretended not to, for it was stylish to get a headache over figures.

But the silly little thing, who was too nice to ask prices a few years ago, is decidedly old-fashioned now. The modern woman takes pride in getting her money's worth.

The fashionable woman of today is a keen, shrewd buyer. She can pick as good a bargain in a grocery store as her husband can in his office. She's in the business of keeping house... And, more often than not, she's a steady A & P customer.

OCONTO EKES OUT 21-19 WIN FROM NEENAH

Defeat Is First This Season for Last Year's State Champions

Neenah—With the score 20 to 19 in Neenah's favor and but a minute left to play, the Oconto high school center scored a field goal last night at Oconto, handing Neenah its first defeat of the season and dropping the Jorgenson team out of first place in the league.

Oconto will play a return game here on the evening of Feb. 20. Neenah was ahead during the first two quarters, 6 and 4 and 12 and 9. The third quarter ended 16 and 15 in Oconto's favor. One during the first quarter, immediately after the start of the game, Neenah was in the lead 6 and 1.

Coach Ole Jorgenson started his game with Schmidt, Barnes, Bell, Block and Johnson. Oconto started with H. Wintner, Cashman, Meyer, A. Wintner and W. Wintner.

Johnson made the first point for Neenah on a foul by Cashman, followed by a short field goal by Block. Johnson then was called on a foul which resulted in Oconto's first point by Cashman. H. Wintner fouled, with Barnes scoring one point. Schmidt started his scoring by a short shot. Block was the next to foul, Cashman again scoring as a result. Schmidt fouled, W. Wintner scored one point. Barnes fouled again giving W. Wintner a point.

The second quarter started with a short shot by Cashman, tying the score 6 all. H. Wintner fouled, Johnson making the free throw point putting Neenah in the lead. Johnson fouled, but Meyer missed the chance. Cashman fouled and Block missed the free throw. H. Wintner dropped one in the hoop from mid-floor.

Lead At Half

This put Oconto into the lead, 8 and 7. W. Wintner fouled and Barnes missed the shot. Johnson fouled again and Cashman missed. W. Wintner fouled, Schmidt made the marker, again tying the game 8 and 8. Schmidt dropped another jumper after the free throw point. Block fouled, A. Wintner making a free throw as the half ended 12 and 9 in Neenah's favor.

Immediately after the third quarter A. Wintner dropped in a ringer, which started an Oconto rally. A. Wintner fouled and Schmidt scored. Block fouled for a free throw point made by W. Wintner. Neenah still leading by one point. H. Wintner dropped one in the hoop, which placed Oconto ahead. He repeated the stunt almost immediately, putting his team in the lead 12 and 13. H. Wintner fouled, Block scoring. Barnes fouled, A. Wintner missing. A. Wintner fouled, Johnson making one out of two chances, ended the quarter in Oconto's favor.

The fourth quarter started with A. Wintner fouling, Schmidt making the free throw, tying the score again 16 and 16. Johnson found the hoop for a two point lead. Cashman sank one and again tied the score. W. Wintner fouling, Block missing. Barnes made his third foul, W. Wintner missed the first free throw but made the second free throw on a foul called on Neenah's coach, who had gone on the floor to protest a decision. The score at this time was 19 and 13 in Oconto's favor. Schmidt dropped another goal and Neenah again led 20 and 19. With one minute to go, Meyer, Oconto's center, scored a goal.

Neenah was represented by more than 200 people, who made the trip by the special train and autos. The high school band furnished music during intermissions.

ANOTHER CHEST CLINIC AWARDED TO NEENAH

Neenah—Neenah has been allotted a three-day free chest clinic, although the dates have not been set. The clinic is made possible by the generous response of Neenah citizens during the annual Christmas seal sale. Neenah, the report showed, had the highest per capita sale among cities of from 8,000 to 10,000 population. This sale is conducted annually by the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association. The sale here was the largest ever conducted in the city.

LUTHERAN CAGERS TO MEET MILWAUKEE FIVE

Neenah—Trinity Lutheran Men's club basketball team will play Sunday afternoon with a team of Hope M. Olin church, Milwaukee. The team has been playing for the past three weeks.

Beloit—School authorities here wonder which law is effective in the case of Beniah Hansen, 15, who married Harry Z. Nahan, a week ago—the one requiring attendance of all children to the age of 18, or the one requiring married students. While they try to arrange for a special vocational school class for her, she is attending junior high school, the only married student ever in that institution.

NEENAH EXCHANGE IS SWAMPED WITH CALLS ABOUT GAME

Neenah—The local telephone exchange was swamped Friday evening with calls concerning the Neenah-Oconto basketball game. At 10 o'clock it was necessary to call in extra help for the two girls on night duty. For a time it was impossible to get central because of so many calls. BE PALS TO YOUR SONS, FATHERS IN NEENAH ARE TOLD

Learn to Play and Stay Young, Educator Advises at Banquet

Neenah—The annual Father and son banquet, sponsored by Immanuel Lutheran church Brotherhood, was served Friday evening at the church dining room. Supper was served at 6:30 by the Ladies' Aid society, after which mass singing, led by the Rev. E. C. Kollath and accompanied on the piano by Emily Owens, was enjoyed.

The speaker was the Rev. T. Lehmann of Elmhurst college, Elmhurst, Ill. Rev. Lehmann discussed playing.

"A man is never too old to play," he said. He should learn to stay young so that boys will be glad to associate with their fathers. "Fathers are too busy nowadays and have no time for their sons, but the Father and Son movement which is sweeping the country is doing much to bring the male members of the family together."

He cited that if the period of concern in the life of a boy could be bridged and those years when the boy's idea of life is being formed, he will be found to be the greater pal after these days are passed. These years are when the boy is blooming into manhood. "There is no more honorable position in life than the fact that one is a father, a responsibility and something to guide for a life of honor and loyalty, the speaker pointed out."

"The home environment goes toward making a child a good or bad citizen," he said. "The parents must be pals and guard the center of the universe, the home. Do not try to stop a boy who wants to broaden out by further education by forcing him to work at something that will interfere with his educational ambitions. Encourage him in his chosen activity show him the beautiful things in life, build the world together, don't live in it alone, never trust to chance, but learn. There is no greater thing than my relationship to my child and my God and it is my duty to teach and play at the same time."

Following the address, the Rev. E. C. Kollath, pastor of the church, discussed the relationship of the father to the son.

Among the guests were the Rev. and Mrs. W. R. Wetzel and Carl Buft of Appleton and Adelbert Blank, Neenah, a student at Elmhurst college.

KAUKAUNA FIVE IS DEFEATED AT SHAWANO, 19-15

Coach Little's Team Fades After Leading at Half, 10 to 5

Kaukauna—Kaukauna high school's basketball team fell victims to the Shawano cagers at the latter city Friday evening, 19 to 15, after outplaying the Indians during the first half.

The Kaukauna defense was pierced but once for a field goal in the first half, the Shawanoites relying on gift shots for their tallies. The Kavs led at half time, 10 to 5. They were constantly in range of the hoop and many shots were missed. Koch was easily the leader, both in floor work and shooting for the Kavs in the first half. He hopped two nice shots from near the center of the floor.

Prusick started the second half with a long shot, and from then on the game slowly began to belong to the red and blacks. With the aid of numerous free shots they forged ahead to lead the Kavs at the end of the third quarter 13 to 15. Coach Little tried a different combination at this stage of the game and it stopped the scoring, but fouls again helped the Indians and the Kavs were unable to gain on the free point lead.

In the final stanza Vandyke netted a field goal to bring the score 16 to 15 for most of the quarter. Shawano cagers were unable to get a shot at the hoop in the final frame but a few fouls gave them enough free throws to overcome the lead. Every man on the Kaukauna team took shots in the last frame but they were unsuccessful. The gun found the Kavs under the basket trying desperately.

This is the fourth conference loss for the Orange and Blacks, and the chief reasons for the defeats have been due to a poor eye for the basket, and too many personal fouls.

The third period found Sheboygan fighting hard to come back. Kaukauna succeeded in making only two points while Sheboygan tallied the same number. The score at the end of this period stood 14 to 9.

Weakening in the last quarter the Sheboygan quintet scored 10 points while holding the local five to two.

Next week Kaukauna will meet Manitowish. The game is scheduled for Saturday evening. This will be the last home game for several weeks.

Just One Big Round of Romance

Janette MacDonald, Jack Buchanan in the Paramount Picture "Monte Carlo," an Ernst Lubitsch Production at the Elite Theatre 3 days starting Monday.

Here's the greatest hot-for-glee potpourri of pleasure the talking screen has seen in many a moon.

It's the tale of a count and a countess and a bad old prince who tries to count them out, but who finally is overwhelmed by the veritable gales of gaiety and farce which sweep this momentarily merry Ernst Lubitsch production along to a magnificently rich, romantic finale.

Your Birthday

If February 8th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:30 a. m. to 10 a. m., and from 3:30 p. m. to 5:30 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 2 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 9 p. m.

This date will be not especially eventful, but it will be pleasant and happy for that reason, and you will enjoy passive and restful hours. Travel is likely. Journeys will be made easily and profitably. Increased health and vitality.

Children born on this February 8th will probably be called frivolous, indifferent, cynical and spiteless, and will probably, also, however, have latent characteristics which will serve them well in the future. Underneath their seeming "thick-skinned," beats a heart full of unexpressed affection, and suppressed emotions.

You are inclined to be a faint heart, and once defeated, you seldom give yourself a second chance, and you will continue life on the lower slopes of the humdrum and commonplace. Your spirit may often rebel, at your so-called fate, but you lack the courage and state of mind to change things. You would know how to enjoy a life of luxury, and how to grace it, but you will never secure it, on your efforts. The proverbial "rich aunt," or some other obliging relative, is pictured as coming to your rescue, after you have reached the age of thirty. You are not really a spend-thrift, and you will hang on to any good luck which comes your way.

If you be a man, you have a mechanical bent, and you love to tinker at things—a handy man about a home. You refuse to be rushed. At all times, you will take your own good time about doing things. Your finished jobs, however, usually display good and careful workmanship. Laziness is not one of your faults, and if you had more pluck and nerve, nothing could hold you back. You will never fall through ignorance, as you keep yourself well informed.

You love sociability, and are a very cosmopolitan mixer—you will be brother to anyone who is brother to you in what they think. A crowd stimulates you, and you have nerves which do not mind a noise. There is likely to be some misfortune or inharmonious connected with your parents.

SUCCESSFUL PEOPLE BORN February 8th:

- 2—Jos. Albert Linnet—entomologist.
- 3—Richard W. Glider—author.

'CONCENTRATIN' KID' GIBSON AT HIS BEST

Famous Western Star Scores Hit in Newest Universal Thriller

The "Concentratin' Kid"—that's Hoot Gibson and when he concentrates on something he wants—well, he gets it. However, there is usually more than just plain, plaided matter in his newest Universal western thriller which comes to the screen of the Elite Theatre today and Sunday.

Hoot Gibson, the peer of riders and ropers, is seen at his best in "The Concentratin' Kid." Chucked full of thrills, action and unexpected adventure together with rare cowboy humor, the film does not lack interest, and the plot unfolds with rapid, sure-fire motion.

The story concerns itself with a cowboy who is very much in love with a radio singer whom he has never seen, and the complications that result from their romance and a group of cattle rustlers.

The story works up to a swift climactic finish, that leaves one almost breathless. The action is intense, calling for high pressure action on the part of the cast. Through out the picture there are scenes of hard-riding cow-punchers, hand-to-hand fights and gun play—a sure delight for those who like lively western pictures.

The role of the radio-girl is played by Katherine Crawford, a beautiful and talented singer, who came to the screen from the musical comedy stage. Her singing of "I Went My Man of the Golden West" is one of the highlights of the film.

The leads are supported by an exceptionally strong cast of characters in James Mason, Robert Homans and Duke R. Lee.

CONSENTS TO TEST ON SMITH NOMINATION

Washington—(AP)—United States Attorney Leo Rover Friday consented to test in the courts the right of George Otis Smith to hold office as chairman of the power commission. This was requested by the senate.

He said he would permit the use of his name in bringing proceedings against Smith, but would not prepare the papers nor conduct the court hearings.

He consulted today with senators interested in the case. Smith was originally confirmed by the senate, but reconsideration was voted and then his nomination was rejected. President Hoover meanwhile refused to resubmit his name to the senate.

HERE'S ROMANCE OF DARING PRINCESS

Neil Hamilton, Una Merkel Appear in "Command Performance"

A girl for whom three men had supposedly gone to their deaths. A girl who was a princess of royal blood and yet, despite the atmosphere of dusty traditions in which she lives, a girl who was ultra-modern, sophisticated, independent! A girl who would sacrifice herself on the altar of matrimony out of loyalty to her country.

That is the heroine of "The Command Performance," which will be shown at the Fox Theatre at the Midnight show Saturday and Sunday only. The princess who is to be bartered in marriage for political reasons. An alliance is sought between the kingdoms of Kordovia and Serblant. The latter kingdom is in sorry need of a treaty between the two countries, but Prince Alexis refuses to even go and pay his respects to Princess Katerina and so when a young actor who looks exactly like the Prince gets into a fist fight with His Royal Highness and is arrested, he is given the alternative of wooing the Princess in the Prince's name—or going to the salt mines.

The actor chooses the romantic adventure, but not with a particularly happy heart, because all her suitors have met a very mysterious death and he has no reason to believe he will escape the same fate. Of course, the actor falls madly and seriously in love with the Princess and that's what makes the story doubly thrilling and romantic.

Neil Hamilton in the dual role of the Prince and the actor and Una Merkel as the Princess head the cast which includes Albert Grant, Helen Ware, Lawrence Grant, Thelma Todd, Vera Lewis, Mischea Auer, Burr McIntosh, William von Brincken, and Murdoch MacQuarrie. This is a drama that is romantic, humorous, and thrilling, a drama that everyone wants to see and will see at the Fox Theatre at the Midnight show Saturday and all day Sunday.

LEGGE THINKS SOVIET WILL RULE WHEAT MART

Washington—(AP)—Chairman Legge of the farm board said Friday he viewed Russia's official grain export statement as an indication that the Soviets were turned toward a dominating position in the world wheat market.

"The American farmer cannot compete with Russian wheat in the world market," said, "and if he attempts to he will have to give up riding around in automobiles."

Samuel R. McKelvie, grain member of the board, joined in asserting that American producers could not compete with Russian wheat, because of Russia's "free land and free labor."

McKelvie said there was "no question but that Russia, with unlimited virgin land, could produce great many years, at least with no land and labor cost."

The two agreed the latest report from Moscow showed Russia making more progress in its agricultural program, especially wheat than in the five year industrial plan.

Stars in Local Picture

"HAPPY TIMES ARE HERE"—Miss Elaine Astor film actress and star of the local picture "HAPPY TIMES" which opens at WARNER'S APPLETON THEATRE tomorrow in conjunction with "ONE HEAVENLY NIGHT."

LORETTA YOUNG GOT EARLY START IN FILMS

Loretta Young, winsome star of "The Truth About Truth," the first National production showing, at Warner's Appleton Theatre today only, owes her start in a brilliantly successful picture career to a bit of whimsy which Mervyn LeRoy indulged in, over the telephone.

It seems that Loretta's sister, Polly Ann, had finished a role in a Colleen Moore film and had gone for a vacation to Salt Lake City, under the impression the picture was quite through. Director LeRoy, however, bethought himself how nice it would be if he had a certain shot retaken, and so thinking, he called up the Young home to request Polly Ann's appearance the next day at the studio.

Her brother answered the phone and told Director LeRoy the sad news of Polly Ann's absence, but added that his sister, Gretchen (which is Loretta's real name) was around the house and would drop in if he wished it.

Now LeRoy had no particular reason to ask Loretta to come to the studio. But he had a hunch and said, "Send her along, and tell your mother to wait up for a call, too."

Out of that simple assignment Loretta Young made her presence around the studio so important that today, at the age of seventeen, she is one of the leaders among the leading ladies of the screen.

LUBITSCH DIRECTS "MONTE CARLO" FILM

Talking Picture Is Comedy of Courtship Without Hardship

The name Ziegfeld is one whose mere connection with a stage production seems to assure that production of an amazingly successful run. Similarly, in the realm of talking movies the name Ernst Lubitsch is a talisman for highly successful productions in celluloid.

The Elite theatre on Monday next begins a 3 day showing of Ernst Lubitsch's most recent talking picture for Paramount—"Monte Carlo," a comedy of courtship without hardship in Europe's leading place for misleading ladies.

Jack Buchanan and Jeanette MacDonald are co-featured in the leading roles of this glittering modern farce with music. Buchanan is known as the idol of the London musical comedy stage. Miss MacDonald made her film debut in Ernst Lubitsch's first production for Paramount—"The Love Parade," She was in "The Vagabond King," and "Let's Go Native."

Claud Allister, who played nut character roles with great success in "Building Drummond," "Ladies Love Brutes" and "Three Live Ghosts," heads the support. Also in the cast is the beloved Zasu Pitts, of the delicious voice and the artesian orbs, who was such a tremendous hit in "Honey" and in "The Devil's Holiday."

The story of "Monte Carlo" concerns the fortunes of a charming Countess without money who sets her devoirs for a wealthy prince only to be counted out at the finale by a count with countless millions.

Wide Variety of Talking Pictures to Be Shown Here Next Week

FAMOUS AUTHOR WRITES STORY FOR FILM DEBUT

Evelyn Laye Is Star of
Louis Bromfield's First Screen Effort

The holder of every honor in the field of American letters, Louis Bromfield joined the Samuel Goldwyn writing staff last spring to take a hand with Sidney Howard in preparing the story for Evelyn Laye's first talking picture, "One Heavenly Night," which is to be seen at the Warner's Appleton Theatre, 3 days starting tomorrow.

"One Heavenly Night" is his first original story for pictures, his first screen play. Two years ago, he did a play of his novel, "The House of Women." Currently, he is at work on the dramatization of his most recent book, "Twenty-Four Hours," which the veteran William A. Brady is to produce.

Bromfield was born in Mansfield, Ohio, thirty-three years ago, of Scottish, English and Pennsylvania Dutch ancestry. He was educated in the public schools and always had an ambition to be a writer, from which he swerved only once when he went to Cornell University to study scientific farming. At the suggestion of his father, he was given a farm to run and manage for a year.

A few years later he became a newspaper man, working for the City News Association and later for the Associated Press. Then followed a period in which he wrote music and theatre criticism and hustled as general assistant to a theatrical manager, and also advertising and publicity head for a publishing house.

During the time, he was busy engaged in writing. In 1924, his first novel, "The Green Bay Tree," was published to complete success, enabling him to devote all his time to writing.

"ONCE A SINNER" DYNAMIC FEATURE

Dorothy Mackaill Heads
Cast Which Includes Mc-
Crea, Halliday

No More Poignant, human, dynamic drama has come to the screen in years than is embodied in "Once a Sinner," Fox Movietone production which comes to the Fox Theatre Feb. 12 and 13th.

Dorothy Mackaill is featured and the story revolves around a beautiful girl who has sinned before marriage, and insists on telling her husband-to-be of her past before she marries him. The husband-to-be agrees to forgive and forget. Later jealousy and suspicion enter his mind and prompt him to quarrel with his wife—and they separate. What happens then is vividly and dramatically told in a surprising climax.

Miss Mackaill gives the finest dramatic portrayal of her long and successful career as "Diana Barry," the young wife who insists that her past—before marriage—belongs to her alone, just as her husband's past belongs to him. Joel McCrea, handsome and athletic youth, gives a fine portrayal of the young husband with sincerity the dominating note and John Halliday plays the "other man." Other notable portrayals are contributed by C. Henry Gordon, Ika Chase, Sally Blane, Clara Blandick and Ninette Faro.

George Middleton wrote the story and dialogue and the direction of McClintic reflects his long and enviable success on the New York stage.

BEST PLAY NOW IS TALKING PICTURE

"Criminal Code" Confirms
Award of Recent Theatre
Trophy

On October 3rd, 1929, "The Criminal Code" by Martin Flavin, opened at the National Theatre in New York City. Its romance, poignancy, and heartbreaking prison scenes held a first-night audience enthralled. And the next day the most carping New York newspaper critics hastened to acclaim it a tremendously powerful and moving epic of the theatre. The judgment of the critics was confirmed by the award of the Theatre Club Trophy to "The Criminal Code" as the best play of the year. "The Criminal Code" had a run of twenty-six continuous weeks before packed houses on Broadway.

This play was bought by Columbia Pictures at an enormous price and its screen version will be presented at WARNER'S APPLETON THEATRE TONIGHT—regular engagement opens on Wednesday. It is said that its adaptation to the screen has further enhanced the poignant romance that the play depicted. And here are a few excerpts from the reviews of the play by biase New York critics:

J. Brooks Atkinson (New York Times): "A finely wrought, tormenting representation... you are swept off your feet by the forces set in motion.... It is a profoundly moving play."

John Anderson (N. Y. Evening Journal): "Heart breaking tragedy, profoundly moving and tremendously stirring to sympathies that go deeper than melodrama.... genuine and superbly effective."

Robert Coleman (The Daily Mirror): "A play that fairly tears at

Will Rogers and Louise Dresser in a scene from John Golden's "Lightnin'." A Fox Movietone Production, starting Monday at the Fox Theatre.

EXCELLENT CAST SUPPORTS ROGERS IN NEW PICTURE

Louise Dresser, Joel McCrea and Helen Cohan in Leading Roles

Stage, screen, literature, arts, fashions and the Fourth Estate are in evidence in the Personnel of the cast supporting Will Rogers in what is expected to prove his most triumphant audible picture, "Lightnin'" which will be shown three days starting Monday at the Fox Theatre, from John Golden's most successful stage play, Rogers, undoubtedly the best known personality in America, has perhaps the most varied background of any man in the public eye. Caught doing roving stunts for a medicine show, an alert vaudeville agent sensed possibilities in him and soon after he was doing a vaudeville act. From vaudeville stage it was but a short step to the "Follies," the talk taking precedence over the roping tricks and his intimate and seemingly crude knowledge of the news of the day.

"In 'Lightnin'," Rogers portrays the role of Bill Jones who hates wit as much as he likes his little nip. He is, as a rule, about half "lit up" and on such occasions tells the most outrageous and fancifully imaginable, including his boast that he "once drove a swarm of bees across the plains in the dead of winter and never lost a bee."

He is called "Lightnin'" on account of his methodical way and because he is never in a hurry. He is a whimsical old character, kind and lovable and is always attempting to do some one a good turn, though he insists on taking his own good time in accomplishing whatever he sets out to do. In the end, he outwits a wrong and brings romance to his daughter, Lilith, a character portrayed by Helen Cohan, youngest daughter of George M. Cohan of stage fame.

Other notables in the large and carefully selected cast are J. M. Kerrigan, Sharron, Lynn Frank Campbell, Jason Roberts, Mike Cosgrave, Walter Porecki, Charlotte Walker, and Thomas Jefferson.

When shipments from Duluth, Minn., for the year up to Jan. 1, 1931, were only 6,000,000 bushels less than in the previous year.

"HOLIDAY" COMEDY DRAMA OF SOCIETY

Story Considered Outstanding for Tenseness, Human Interest

Outstanding in every respect, a massive production with a story which for tenseness and human interest has seldom been told on the dialogue screen, and every character played by a thorough stage artist, the Patho picture, "Holiday," which comes to the Elite Theatre on Thursday and Friday next, doubtless will be acclaimed as being perhaps the finest comedy drama of this society and wealth ever filmed.

Sophistication and smartness—these are the terms that truly describe the charm and scintillation that marks every scene of "Holiday." Set in the background of a Fifth Avenue mansion of unlimited wealth, a most gripping story is developed with intelligence and savoir faire. The brilliant dialogue of Philip Barry's stage success, has been retained in the screen version almost in its entirety.

THE CRIME IN THE DUTCH GARDEN

BY HERBERT ADAMS

Chapter 10
THE CLOAKED WOMAN

JIMMIE and Richmond followed the maid into Evelyn's and Marjorie's room. They were there, dressed in simple black frocks. Their likeness to each other was remarkable, although Marjorie seemed tired and worried.

The superintendent's reply to Marjorie's question concerning the case was noncommittal. "It is your sister I want to talk to."

"Do you mean alone? She is still very upset."

Evelyn glanced anxiously at Marjorie and then moved toward the door, Jimmie Haswell slipping out with her.

"Leave them together for a moment or two," he whispered. "Richmond is a bit severe, but not a bad sort." He hesitated. "I wonder if you would let me see Mrs. Frater, the cook?"

"Why, of course, but—she, checked a surprised question and showed him the kitchen door. He tapped before he opened it. "May I come in? I have called with a message from a friend of yours."

A young woman was standing alone in front of her range.

The kitchen was a most attractive place, its open windows overlooking the gardens.

"It was Mrs. Wade who told me about you," began Jimmie. "She was so sorry you had been ill and hopes you are all right again."

Mrs. Frater flushed with pleasure and Jimmie continued, "You weren't really as bad as the doctor thought, were you?"

She jerked at him a bit oddly. "Perhaps I was; perhaps I wasn't."

"Miss Querlding wished you to stay in bed and the doctor told you to, but you didn't want to," continued Jimmie. "How long was it after the doctor left that you got up and went out?"

Her blush told him his surmise was correct.

"I went out directly the doctor left me," she said.

But when he asked why, she told him crisply and definitely that it was her own business.

"Or is it Alf Collett's business?" Jimmie ventured smilingly, and when another flush confirmed his suggestion, he explained. "Mrs. Frater, you know that about the time you slipped out of the house your mistress was killed. You know we have been trying to discover who was in the garden at the time. Don't you think it would have been easier if you had told us you were there?"

"I won't asked."

"But if it is discovered afterwards, what will people think? Would it not be better for you to tell me just what you did—better for Alf as well as for yourself?"

"Keep Alf out of it. He never went near her. No more did I."

She told her story in a straightforward manner. She had an appointment to meet Alf, her sweetheart, at a gap in the lane fence, and filled it when the doctor left. They had not been together long, and after the meeting she had gone back to bed. Soon Janet came up and told her about the tragedy.

Alf, she was sure, had gone home, walking, since he had no car.

"I see," Jimmie said. "Now, Mrs. Frater, will you go now and put on the cloak you wore that night and walk out of the house just as you did then? Follow the same path, and come back."

"I believe what you have told me, Mrs. Frater. If you do as I ask, it will help to prove that it is true."

"Very good, sir."

Jimmie then returned to the room where the superintendent, warm and angry, was turning the leaves of the notebook. While Marjorie's sister showed her mistress.

"When I asked you if the doctor and Miss Querlding talked of anything beside the cook's illness," he said harshly. "You replied, 'Nothing else.' You knew perfectly well she had said that when you married you would get nothing. Why didn't you tell me?"

The girl smiled that her sister frequently had made such remarks, she had forgotten they were repeated just then.

"Forgotten? What had to it?"

"Nothing."

"Had she ever before said it in Dr. Netherton's or any other young man's presence?"

"No." The girl was answering in angry, half-frightened syllables.

"Yet you want me to believe that you forgot it, and you insist that when you and the doctor were together afterwards you were just talking over old times? Did he phone through and tell you so?"

Then Jimmie interrupted. "If you will come quickly you will see the unknown woman Duckworth noticed that night."

Stepping to his side, Richmond pressed his moist nose against the window pane and left his mark upon it. But he saw clearly and distinctly a cloaked figure that crossed a path at the further corner of the house and disappeared into the shrubbery in a direction away from the Dutch garden.

"Who is she?"

Jimmie explained, adding that he believed Mrs. Frater's story, which seemed to account for her actions on the night of the tragedy.

"I will see Alf Collett," said Richmond, "before he is put wise. The cook is not likely to telephone."

Richmond was chagrined at this point to learn that Evelyn and Marjorie had gone out without his permission.

When he and Jimmie reached the road they were met by Constable Roscoe, looking very hot.

"It's all right, sir," he said, jumping for his bicycle. "Everything cleared up."

"What do you mean?" Richmond demanded.

"Poe Allen did it. And he has disappeared."

Richmond's surprise could not conceal a natural disappointment that what seemed a profound mystery should have been revealed so simple.

The puffing Roscoe explained that at 8 p. m. Thursday Joe Allen had set out on his motorcycle from the home of his aunt, Mrs. Kneebie, saying he was going to London to get a job.

He stopped at the Brown Bear tavern to bid his pals good bye and Roscoe had a sworn statement from Richard Grey, Bert Griffin and Able Dale that Joe had vowed he would "pay off" Miss Querlding for his dismissal.

It was Roscoe's belief that Allen, after leaving the tavern, had hidden in the Querlding gardens and awaited the right time for his revenge. Seemingly to confirm this, Roscoe said that Allen had not reached his destination in London, the home of his aunt's sister, by Friday morning. A card from her to Mrs. Kneebie, postmarked Friday night, so advised.

"If Roscoe's tale is right," said Jimmie after he and Richmond had congratulated the constable. "It would end the affair. However, one mustn't rely too much on a boy's bragging. And it is odd that Allen should have started so late on a 200-mile trip unless he planned to stop on the way."

Lake wildfire it spread through the village that Allen was wanted for the murder. So far as the villagers were concerned, he was a ready tried and sentenced.

Jimmie reasoned simply that Mrs. Querlding had dismissed him ungraciously. He had threatened revenge and had disappeared at about the time of the murder. Look at it how you would was there a doubt about it?

BULLS BRING OUT STRENGTH AS WEEK ENDS

Rails, Motor Shares, Office Appliances and Chemicals Lead Rise

Associated Press Financial Editor
New York.—(AP)—The stock market ended a week of gradually rising prices with a brisk upturn today. Bull groups resumed operations in the motor shares, office appliances, chemicals and a number of specialties, prompting a hurried retreat of the bears in the last half hour. There were numerous gains of 1 to 5 points, and transactions for the two-hour session aggregated $1,200,000,000.

While weekend business surveys were none too cheerful, the stock exchange monthly report of the ratio of brokers loans to the total market value of listed shares showed that on Feb. 1 loans for carrying stock at a margin amounted to only about 33 per cent of the total market value of stocks. Never, since comparable statistics have been available, has stock trading been reduced to such a thoroughgoing cash basis. A year previously, loans amounted to about 53 per cent of the market value of all shares.

General Motors sold up more than a point to the best price of the New Year, and other automotive issues up a point or two included Nash, Hudson, Hupp, Pierce Arrow, Mack Truck, Buick, and Electric Auto. Auburn shot up 5.

Steels were sluggish until the late trading, but U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and Byers closed up a point or so, and other important industrials up 1 to 2 included American Can, Case, Eastman, Johns Manville, and Westinghouse Electric. The chemicals appeared to have been oversold on the basis of declines in chemical prices. Allied shot up 5, and U. S. Industrial Alcohol gained 4. Union Carbide gained 2.

Rails Utilities Quiet
Rails and Utilities did not join conspicuously in the advance, but Algonquin sold up nearly 4, and such issues as New York Central, American Telephone, Public Service of N. J., North American and American Water Works gained a point or two.

In the office appliances, Burroughs National Cash Register, Underwood Elliott and International Business Machines sold up 1 to nearly 2 points. Tobaccos were firm, American and Liggett and Myers, "B" stocks rising a point. Oils and copper were sluggish but steady.

Week-end reports of steel mill activity indicated small gains in the Chicago and Youngstown districts for next week. Rumors of a sag in steel prices were scattered in trade circles, where it was said that an advance would be more likely. U. S. Steel's monthly tonnage report, to be made public next Tuesday, is expected to be moderately favorable, although Wall Street estimates are vague.

The fact that the weekly mercantile reviews reported some disappointing results in retail and wholesale trade, failed to dissuade the market from its desire for results for January have been nearly satisfactory, and the early date of Easter this year will have a stimulating effect before long.

Declaration of the regular preferred dividends by rail corp. of America was a favorable development, dispersing the pessimists who had feared concern on that score.

BULLS MANAGE TO BRING STOCK RALLY

New York.—(AP)—Bullish enthusiasm for a few stocks provoked a market rally today and the market swung into one of the most active rallies in weeks, closing generally at the top.

Electric Bond & Share reached its best price since the December break, rallying to 46 1/2, where it closed with a net gain of 2 1/2. Vacuum Oil continued its advance, rising 5 points to 66 and holding most of the rise. Technicolor was another favorite, up 2 points.

Strength of these and a few other shares sent the shorts to cover and the entire list advanced. Gains in many of the utilities failed to exceed fractions, but there were some exceptions, notably Duke Power, which rose 3 1/2, and American Foreign Power Warrants, up 1 point.

The bear faction had to scramble to protect its commitments in numerous specialties, although Technicolor was the most active issue. Ford Limited and Walgreen were among shares up a point or more.

Standard Oil of Indiana regained the ground it lost on the dividend cut early in the week and closed with an advance of nearly a point, while Gulf was up 3 1/2. Cities Service was firm.

MILWAUKEE PRODUCE
Milwaukee.—(AP)—Butter, weak; tubs, standards 23-24; extras 25; eggs, weak; fresh firsts 15-16; poultry, weak. Live heavy hogs 5.50; light hogs 5.30; springers 2.50; leg-horn springers 2.00; broilers 2.00; turkeys 24; ducks 18; geese 14.
